"I don't know another business and become as successful

Thomas B. Wheeler, Yale '58

"Four years ago some of my closest friends thought I was a little crazy when I quit a solid job with a giant corporation to sell life insurance.

"Now, a wife, a daughter, a comfortable home and over $4,000,000 in life insurance sales later, even the most skeptical of these have changed their views.

"And best of all I am not caged in by the age or ability of anybody else. My ceiling is unlimited — my income is in direct proportion to the work I do . . ."

And income consists of two factors — commissions from new business and fees for policy renewals. Since a new agent's clients tend to be his contemporaries, the volume of new business from them increases as they progress and move up the income ladder. But even if an agent's new business were to remain level at, say $1 million per year for the first five years, his income could double during that period because of renewal fees.

While income is extremely important, the insurance company you represent can make a big difference, too. Ask any life insurance man and you'll find Mass Mutual has a reputation for being solid yet progressive. After all, it's been in the business for over a century and has more than $3 billion in assets.

So if you're a person who likes people, who wants a business of his own with no capital outlay and no ceiling on what he can make — and if you're anxious to work hard for yourself — this is it.

If you are looking for the rewards Tom Wheeler wants, the President of Mass Mutual would like to know about it. Write him a personal letter: Charles H. Schaaff, President, Mass Mutual, Springfield, Mass. 01101. It could be the most valuable letter you'll ever write.

THE CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY TODAY

by

Rev. Charles F. Donovan, S.J.

Academic Vice-President

THIS HAS BEEN called by psychologists the age of the identity crisis. Particularly our young people, it is said, experience feelings of alienation, of doubt about who they are and where they are going and how they fit into a scheme of things they did not construct. We are told that it is this identity crisis, this emotional frustration and confusion about the meaning and goal of life, that accounts for the ferment and sometimes the turbulence on our college campuses and the often open hostility of adolescents towards authority and authority figures, even those who try to be benevolent and understanding such as parents, teachers and college administrators.

I think an identity crisis need not be personal only. Such a crisis can also be institutional or social: that is, a group of people or a social complex can experience doubts about its identity and goals. To some extent we are experiencing this in the Catholic Church today as we move from a defensive, in-group, and sometimes belligerent posture as regards other religious bodies to ecumenism with its dialogue, cooperation and sympathy with other denominations. This experience is a wholesome one; indeed it is most surely the work of the Holy Spirit insofar as it inspires and enables us to dedicate ourselves to the full mission of the Christian vocation, to open the gates of our hearts and minds to all men, in imitation of Our Divine Savior. There is a concomitant danger, of course, that for some this crisis may end not in a clearer and more mature perception of their Catholic identity but in a loss of that identity. For some the ecumenical removal of battlements and ramparts separating us from other Christians and from non-Christians may mean a blurring or dissolution of differences, leading to some least common denominator religion or even secular humanism. We naturally pray that the Holy Spirit will protect individuals and groups in the Church from such an unhappy miscarriage of the spirit and aims of the ecumenical movement.

The point I would like to make here is that Catholic education is undergoing, as it properly should, an identity crisis of its own, as part of the contemporary Catholic experience. The perception of the role of Catholic education, the statement of its mission and goals as they most likely would have been expressed by good Catholic parents, bishops, and pastors a century ago are not completely relevant today. Catholic schools and colleges were founded in the 19th century by immigrant Catholic groups who settled in a religiously hostile environment. In the midst of an aggressively and dominantly Protestant milieu the Catholic school was an instrument for holding the Catholic children together in a friendly environment, a means for protecting their dignity as persons and, more important, for protecting their faith. But the circumstances in which our Catholic people live today in this age of religious and cultural pluralism, in this Johannine era of ecumenical harmony are vastly different from those in which the American Catholic educational system was founded. It is natural therefore that we should ask what is the role and even what is the need of Catholic education today.

WE CAN answer these questions best not by taking a quick and condescending look at the poverty-stricken parochial schools and struggling little Catholic colleges of a century ago as academic ghettos to which a beleaguered minority group consigned its children to shut out contamination by foreign ideologies. Rather we are well advised to look at the whole scope of American education and at the broader goals of Catholic education which were valid in 1866 as they are valid in 1966.

American education, whether under public or private auspices, was essentially religious education from the time of the founding of the Colonies to the Civil War period. We read this account of Harvard college life in the 17th and 18th centuries from the pen of Samuel Eliot Morison:

An important, and as many will think, an essential, ingredient, of this early education was the religious spirit of Harvard. Our founders brought over this medieval Christian tradition undiluted. The Harvard student's day began and ended with public prayer; daily he heard a chapter of Scripture expounded by the President; Saturday was given up to catechizing and other preparations for the Sabbath, which was wholly devoted to worship, meditation—and surreptitious mischief. Harvard students were reminded in their college laws, and by their preceptors, that the object of their literary and scientific studies was the greater glory of God; and that the acquisition of knowledge for its own sake, without "laying Christ in the bottom, as the only foundation," was futile and sinful.

In the first quarter of the 19th century when Protestantism was rocked by sweeping defections from orthodoxy to Unitarianism, including a majority of Harvard professors, the forming people of Western Massachusetts founded a college of their own, Amherst College, so that their sons could be educated, they said, in a place not so near Albany as Williams and not so near to Plato as Harvard. When the first gymnasium was built at Amherst, the inscription over the entrance was a quotation from St. Paul: "Remember that thy body is a temple of the Holy Ghost."

A recent catalog of Princeton University carries an extended account of the history of Princeton including this significant statement about Princeton's reputation at the time of the American Revolution:

"In the southwest where ever Presbyterian congregations were founded they turned to Nassau Hall for their preachers and teachers until it became the religious and educational capital of Scotch-Irish America. Throughout this region to mention Princeton brought to mind sound scholarship, true piety, and men of elevated character."

Colonial Princeton's goals are indeed noble goals for higher education in any era: to produce people of sound scholarship, true piety and elevated character. We may well ask what has happened to a society that is no longer concerned with all of these objectives. What has happened to educational institutions that disavow two of these purposes, piety and character? Are collegiate institutions that cling to their religious roots more or less representative of the authentic American tradition in higher education than totally secularized colleges and universities? One of the tragedies of American history as I read it is that our Protestant brethren have acquiesced in the secularization of their colleges, many of which they have abandoned and some of which have simply rejected them. One thinks of Harvard,

For study . . .

For music . . .

Yale, Princeton, Wesleyan, Amherst, Columbia, Rutgers and so many other venerable and influential institutions.

RELIGIOUSLY-MOTIVATED Catholic institutions are needed today not as defensive centers in the midst of strong and hostile religious opposition. Thank God, other religions are not so hostile today; but neither are they strong. Religion no longer reaches anywhere near the totality of our people; and much of what is called religion does not offer an unswerving and stable value system. We live today in an increasingly materialistic and nontheistic society. Granted there were materialists and lukewarm religionists in Colonial times and in the energetic 19th century. But in those times there was a pervading religious ethic which most people acknowledged in their hearts as valid, an ethic which condemned materialism and hedonism. Today the situation is different. More and more, as the religions of America have spoken with feebler voices, the religious ethic has become a minority view or a personal idiosyncrasy, whereas materialism and the dismissal of God has become the standard mentality, particularly among American intellectuals. Therefore today Catholic colleges and universities are needed as a haven, as an uplifting force in our society.

One of the most penetrating papers I have ever read on the need for Christian schools and colleges, was delivered by a Protestant clergyman who also happens to be an eminent physicist, Rev. William Pollard, director of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, at a seminar held at the Kent School in Connecticut. Professor Pollard's thesis is that any historical period deserves to be called a dark age when a people or a civilization no longer understand or know or are able to respond to part of their cultural roots. Western culture, as we know, derives from two different roots, the Graeco-Roman and the Judaeo-Christian. There was a time, the 8th, 9th and 10th centuries, when Western man, which then meant European man, forgot the Graeco-Roman component of his heritage and concentrated almost exclusively on the Judaeo-Christian component. But, says Pollard, in the 19th and 20th centuries we have reversed the situation and have lost intellectual and spiritual contact with our Judaeo-Christian roots. So we are now in a Dark Age and we can only hope for another renaissance to help us recapture our lost heritage. Where can such a renaissance start, if not in those academic institutions where the full heritage has never been abandoned?

Let me quote a few sentences from Pollard:

"In spite of the quite high percentage of affiliation with some Christian body which we have in America and the widespread dissemination of Bibles throughout the land, the effect on our basic cultural thought patterns is essentially negligible. Where, for example, in our newspapers or magazines, in radio or TV commentaries, in business and professional associations, or elsewhere in the manifold activities of contemporary Western civilization do you find evidences of the great Biblical themes of grace and providence, of sin and judgment, of the Lordship of Christ over history, of the contingency of all created things and moments on Him who stands above all creation? We simply do not think of our life and history in such terms. We would be by and large baffled and unresponsive to a newspaper editorial or radio commentator who pictured the current crises of our time within such a framework. We have really lost the capacity to look out upon our world and our history through the eyes of one standing fully within the Judaeo-Christian tradition."

We could take that last sentence and from it construct a meaningful definition of Christian education: the aim of Christian education is to enable young men and women to look out upon the world and upon history through the comprehending, enlightened eyes of people standing fully within the Judaeo-Christian tradition.

CATHOLIC schools and colleges are needed today therefore, as they were a century ago, for the benefit of Catholic young men and women, in order that they may receive a full and rich education that is up-to-date. But Catholic educational institutions, particularly our colleges and universities, are needed today for a broader reason that was not so pertinent a century ago, namely, for the good of the contemporary society. A century ago the Christian sects were regrettably at war with one another. But despite their feuding, they did share common religious beliefs which made vital and real a vision of the good life, of the life lived according to God's will. Without being mawkish or sentimentally nostalgic we can say, at least in a sense that would not be as true today, that Americans were then a God-fearing people. One need not be an alarmist or pessimist to believe that as a nation we are today guided less by religious and moral idealism than was true in the past. And that is why Catholic colleges perform an important function of value outside the orbit of our own Catholic interests because their obligation is to preserve and make relevant to today's people and problems the religious and spiritual values that were honored throughout America by people of whatever faith when this land was being shaped into a nation.

The question of contemporary relevance is obviously a crucial one. When we speak regretfully of Harvard's loss of religious orientation we are by no means wishing for a reincarnation of the seminary-type Harvard of Colonial days. A closed religious college is not suited to an open society. The great challenge to the Christian college of our time—the greatest challenge it has ever faced—is to be open without losing its identity and commitment. The religious college of today must not be isolated, competitive, or defensive. The Catholic university has to establish its claim to be a distinct yet integral, a cooperating and influential part of the whole pattern of American higher education. If there is a "new" Church, so there must be a "new" Catholic university after Vatican II. The present duty of Catholic educators, in the interests of their students and of the wider society beyond the campus, is to provide and to demonstrate a significant overlap between the Christian and the academic experience.

A PASSAGE from a recent address by Very Rev. Peter Arrupe, superior general of the Society of Jesus is pertinent. Postulating that today's Jesuit university must be "open," he says:

"Open, first of all to the changes in the Church and its quest, in such fashion that the [professors] may be unceasingly attentive to transmit in their teaching and

... and of course the classroom.

in their methods of education everything that will allow their students to assimilate, in all its vigor, the vitality of a Church in change. Open in the next place, without any fear, to the psychological, cultural and social transformations which are being brought about today at an accelerated pace, following the example itself of Saint Ignatius who studied the methods of the great universities and centers of education of his times and smoothly incorporated them into the first schools of the Society. This cannot fail to raise many questions, for it is quite clear that we must know how to distinguish the constructive elements from those that are not. But our role as educators prevents us from being satisfied with methods that were considered excellent in former times; quite the contrary, our role forces us to adjust ourselves to the actual evolution of academic and educational structures, and to be constantly searching in order to show ourselves, prudently but realistically, faithful to the mentality of our generation, even if we must put aside some of our cherished convictions."

By liberalizing theology and philosophy by electives, by involving professors of other denominations, by an escalated dialogue with other centers of learning, by more stress on Christian social action, and by reexamining its role and purposes, Boston College is in the process of fashioning an academic aggiornamento.

IN CONCLUSION let me allude to one objection I have sometimes heard against attending a Catholic college, namely, that it leads to the formation of an isolated group that does not represent the pluralism of American society and which cuts Catholic talent off from contributing to the wider American community. Parenthetically let me say it has often struck me that a family is a good example of a social unit that doesn't represent the pluralism of American society either, but I hope no one will suggest getting rid of families for this reason. However, I want to give some statistics to show how unfounded is the charge that Catholic college graduates do not mingle in the mainstream of American academic and professional life. I am going to cite some figures about last year's graduates from our own College of Arts and Sciences. I do so because these are the data I happen to have at hand.

Of the 391 seniors who graduated from the College of Arts and Sciences last year, 280 or 71% went directly into graduate studies. An additional 18% signified their intention of doing graduate study after a tour of duty with the armed services, the Peace Corps, or lay apostolate. The 280 students who went immediately into graduate or professional schools enrolled in 73 different universities, 60 under public or private non-religious auspices. A partial sampling gives an indication of the quality and geographical spread of institutions where last year's seniors are now studying. Six are at Columbia University, 2 at Cornell, 4 at Harvard, 5 at Yale, 5 at University of Pennsylvania, 1 at Oxford, 1 at University of Strasbourg, 3 at Indiana, 4 at Michigan State, 2 at Stanford, 2 at Chicago, 3 at Illinois, 1 at University of Hawaii, 7 at Maryland, 2 at Kansas, 2 at Minnesota, 1 at Michigan, 1 at N. Carolina, 5 at Rochester, 1 at Tennessee, 3 at Wisconsin, and 1 at the University of Washington. I might add that these young men did not enter graduate school as second class citizens. Forty-six percent of the 280 who started graduate school this fall did so on scholarship or fellowship, including 1 Marshall fellowship, 1 Danforth fellowship, 1 writer's fellowship to Stanford — one of only 4 in the country, 6 Woodrow Wilson fellowships, 11 N.D.E.A., 3 N.S.F. and 1 N.I.H. fellowships.

I am sure that the record at other fine Catholic colleges would bear out the pattern indicated at Boston College. Our young people from Catholic colleges will mingle with the best of them and they will make significant contributions in American society. And not only their own personal lives but the life of American society itself will be the richer because of the Catholic education these people have had.

A Record of the Past — Opportunity for the Future

THE PROGRAM FOR STRENGTH IN EXCELLENCE

"A generous gift to this University is an excellent investment." Speaking was Stephen P. Mugar, chairman of the Star Market Company and philanthropist, whose generous gift of more than half a million dollars to Boston College sparked the construction of the newest building at the Chestnut Hill campus, the John P. Higgins Science Center.

Mr. Mugar was keynote speaker at a dinner meeting attended by some 350 alumni on April 27 at the Sheraton Boston Hotel to lay plans for the Alumni Leadership Gifts campaign during the second phase of the Boston College Program for Strength in Excellence.

Calling Boston College "a distinctive partner in this metropolitan area where education is one of our chief products, and where the quality of education is unequaled elsewhere in this great country," Mr. Mugar asserted that more potential givers would be persuaded of the investment possibilities at Boston College and would give generously as they learn more and more facts about what has been happening at the University during the past decade.

Mr. Mugar had high praise for the business, civic, and professional contributions to the community made by alumni of Boston College and predicted that the impact would be even greater in future years because of the expansion of university enrollments and facilities.

SPEAKING, he said, as a businessman, he paid tribute to the president of Boston College for his management abilities during the past ten years, a period in which enrollment at the graduate and professional schools has doubled, the strength of the university faculty has risen by nearly two-thirds, the annual operating budget has more than tripled, and a score of major buildings have been added to the Chestnut Hill campus.

"Your Alma Mater," he said, "is an institution on the move, with even more dynamic growth potential than the brief record I have mentioned. The record of the past and the opportunity for the future not only deserves, but commands the support of all the alumni of Boston College."

The Very Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., President of Boston College, offered his thanks to the alumni for their past support and continuing support of the University and for their cooperation and loyal assistance in getting phase II underway.

Stephen P. Mugar, Boston College benefactor, is greeted by the Very Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., University President. Mr. Mugar addressed alumni leaders at a recent reception and dinner marking the opening of the Alumni Leadership Gifts campaign in the second phase of the Boston College Program for Strength in Excellence.

"VERY frankly," he said, "the fundamental objective of our development program is to make Boston College the outstanding Catholic educational institution in the country. We intend to settle for nothing less."

Higgins Hall during Spring construction, 1966.

Father Walsh reviewed some of the progress made at Boston College during the past decade and emphasized the effects of the successful first-phase program which raised more than $15,000,000 in gifts and pledges for the strengthening of the University. He cited as typical examples of growth the increased enrollment in all schools, the expansion of the university libraries (430,000 to 657,000 volumes in ten years), the establishment of six new doctoral programs (a seventh, in Philosophy, will begin in September, 1966), the sharp rise in annual scholarship aid at Boston College (from $187,000 to $1,600,000 since 1956), and the present value of the physical plant, now nearly $50,000,000 and more than twice the value ten years ago.

Terming this "a most critical period for Boston College," Father Walsh described some of the additional needs to be met through the second-phase $25,000,000 campaign. In the face of increasing competition, he pointed out, Boston College must continue to recruit first-class faculty for the present and for the future. Boston College must acquire more land and must provide more classrooms, a large and modern university library, more dormitories for men and women students, and substantial endowment funds for faculty and students. The proposed building for the fine arts, he added, would help to make Boston College a major cultural center in the country.

PRIORITY PROJECTS

Social Sciences Center (formerly called Institute of Human Sciences)	$ 3,500,000
New University Library (minimum)	5,000,000
Faculty Study Center	3,500,000
Auditorium, Theater and Fine Arts Center	4,000,000
Dormitories (total cost $15,000,000)	5,000,000
Scholarship Endowment (need $4,000,000)	1,000,000
Faculty Endowment (need $11,000,000)	3,000,000
	$25,000,000

HE announced also that architectural plans for the Social Sciences Center, the building which will house the Institute of Human Sciences, the School of Social Work, and the departments of psychology and sociology, have been approved and that ground-breaking for the new Center is now scheduled for October 15, 1966. The building will be erected at the south end of the campus adjoining Beacon Street just opposite the School of Education building, Campion Hall. The "temporary" wooden buildings erected at the site during World War Two will be torn down to make way for the Center. The estimated cost of construction will be $3,500,000.

Father Walsh stated that he hopes to get substantial assistance from the Federal Government to meet some of the needs, perhaps as much as two-thirds of the funds necessary for the construction of dormitory buildings. But at least $25,000,000 must be raised among alumni, friends, corporate donors, and foundations.

"The alumni of Boston College," he said in closing, "are the key to our future at Boston College. We ask for your help in making the University a stronger source of national and international leadership. We ask for your help in our continuing effort to make the University a major center of education in America. We ask you to give us the tools to achieve this program for strength in excellence at Boston College."

Alumni leaders have established a goal of $10,000,000 to be raised during the next five years among alumni of all classes. During the first phase, which was successfully completed in 1965, 10,786 alumni of the University made gifts to Boston College totaling $7,276,000.

General Chairman of the alumni effort is James F. Stanton, '42, of Waltham. He led the Alumni General Gifts Division during the first phase.

Raising seventy per cent ($7,000,000) of the total alumni objective will be the responsibility of Dr. James F. McDonough, '35, Winchester physician. Gifts of $2,500 and upwards will be the target of the Committee of some sixty members representing classes from 1917 through 1962.

PROBLEM OF ADMISSIONS

JAMES P. MCINTYRE

IF you have had an opportunity to be a close observer of higher education during the past two decades, you probably will have been struck by at least one major characteristic—change. It isn't that American colleges and universities believe that they should cater to every passing whim or transitory fashion of society, but certain modifications have become necessary in the light of the needs and the facts of the second half of the 20th century.

Perhaps the most evident change that has taken place has been due to growth. Twice as many students will attend college in September, 1966, than the total enrolled in September, 1956. More students have required more faculty, more courses, and more facilities. Change and growth have precipitated decision-making processes at all levels of university life. Since the primary tasks of a university are still teaching and learning, the decisions that are made in accepting certain students and rejecting others for that learning would have to rank among the most crucial and the most sensitive.

The importance that is attached to admissions decisions by Boston College can be appreciated in at least one sense by the amount of time and research that the university directs toward this effort. During the past year, the admissions office has received over 6800 applications for the next freshman class. The process that determines which of these applicants will have an opportunity to number themselves among the members of the Class of 1970 is a complicated, time-consuming, but nonetheless a humanizing process.

THE PREDICTOR PROBLEM

The first important decision that has to be made in the admission process is to separate those who can be academically successful from those who cannot. The past several years of student performances at Boston College have enabled us to isolate certain factors from a student's record which have the most value in predicting academic success. An examination of some of these predictors may give you some insight into our thinking and our problems.

Perhaps you will not be surprised to learn that the most reliable and consistent predictor of college success over the years has been a student's high school record. Both the components and the quality of that record are evaluated intensively. All of the students who apply to Boston College will have followed a college preparatory program, but even this aspect of the student's record needs to be examined very closely. It cannot be understood in the mere acquisition of a certain number of Carnegie Units. When one encounters secondary education today, he has to be impressed by the vast diversity which characterizes it. A college preparatory program today may signify only the acquisition of factual information, or it may mean learning how to generalize and how to understand. It may emphasize merely habits of thought, or its emphasis could be on the development of critical and analytical abilities. It may mean an exposure to a creative and independent search for an answer, or it may mean a routine exercise in memorizing the answer.

In addition to having some insight into the type of methodology to which a student has been exposed, it is also critical to determine the academic track in which the student has taken his courses. Some rather clever symbols have been devised to report whether a student has taken his courses in an advanced, "blue ribbon," or "blue-jay" section or whether the student has been in a regular, "ordinary-guy," or "blue-bird" section. Of course, further complications are added when a student has taken some courses in an advanced track and others in a regular track. Thus, when these records are being evaluated in the Admissions Office, we must ask ourselves more and more, "What do they mean?"

Even grades can be interpreted variously. For example, if a student has an "A" record does it mean that he is a compulsive grader—getter—a memory machine, does he have over-anxious parents, or is he truly brilliant? Does an "A" mean that a student has been spoon-fed in a rigid lock-step fashion, or does it mean that a student has a superior intellect and is an enthusiastic learner? A similar set of questions have been posed for the student with a "C" record.

In addition to the numerical facts which can be gleaned from a student's school record, another indispensable factor is a school's recommendation. The testimony of school officials who have observed a student for several years normally includes an assessment of him not only as a student but also as a person. The majority of school officials are able to endorse a candidate's application unless his performance has been unsatisfactory. Situations and circumstances which may have interfered with a student's application to his studies are usually mentioned by the principal or guidance director. More than one favorable admissions decision has been made because of a high school administrator's efforts in pointing out some of the student's positive qualities and attributes which may not have been immediately evident in other parts of the application.

College Boards have always been presumed to offer some magical but mysterious measure of brightness in a class. Even though this premise is accepted we have to be careful of the interpretation which is given to scores at the extreme ends of the table. At the top part of the scale, researchers have begun to suggest for example that the highest scores on standardized tests may not always belong to the most creative students that colleges could find. In fact, we know now that creativity has no monopoly on some particularly narrow range of scores. In addition, we now have psychometric evidence which indicates that the highest scorers on standardized tests may well represent the very traditional, narrow, and convergent types of thinkers.

On the lower part of the scale of standardized tests we have to concern ourselves with the fact and amount of cultural bias which may inhere in them. If a student has not lived a culture which is the same one from which the majority of test takers has come, then he is not being measured as accurately as he could be.

Isolating the relevant academic predictions in a student's application and combining them in such a way as to insure a valid prediction of his performance in different programs available at Boston College is generally speaking, a mathematical process.

When you consider the differences that are presumed to exist among schools, teachers, curricula, and most importantly, students, you may begin to imagine the magnitude of the evaluative procedures that are employed in an admissions office. More specifically when you consider that 6,800 students from 750 high schools will have sent us approximately 20 different grades for each of their high school courses, and this information has to be combined with their ranks in class as well as five separate College Board scores from each student, for each test he took, we will have processed over a quarter of a million quantitative units of information in forming our freshman class.

The advent of the computer has enabled Boston College to consider all of the relevant academic predictors in a student's record, his over-all grade average, the number and kinds of courses that he has taken, his rank in class, and his test results. This combination can then be compared with students who over the years have enjoyed success in the program of studies in which he is interested. The computer, of course, has the capacity to be a repository for huge amounts of information on human performance, ability, and achievement. This type of process enables the admissions officer to be able to establish systematically how much of an excess of one factor can compensate for how much of a deficiency on another factor. For example, if we would normally expect a prospective physics major to have a "B" average and 600's on the College Boards, what should we do with the applicant who has a "C" average and 700's, or the student who has an "A" average with 400's? Admittedly, both the grade average and the College Boards are relevant predictors, and the grade average has always been more reliable. However, we have to be mindful of the vagaries and nuances of grades, ranks in class, and College Boards that we mentioned earlier.

In no sense of the word can computers be understood as making an admissions decision, but they are best understood when we realize their potential for an initial sorting out process. The end result of the computer is a rank list. Its output is able to establish categories of students, those who would be successful, and those who would be unsuccessful, if they were admitted into Boston College. Surprisingly enough one can find students with 700's on the College Boards in the last category and students with 400's on the College Boards in the first two categories, which in itself should dramatize the importance of other academic factors. During the past several years, the first category has been growing in numbers, while the second one has been declining.

This phenomenon has been verified by other selective colleges and has resulted from several circumstances. Perhaps most importantly it reflects the wisdom and efficient operation of school counselors who have made exhaustive attempts to determine the type of student who may be successful or unsuccessful at different colleges; it probably also reflects the fact that Boston College, through her alumni, faculty, and friends has had a fair amount of success in projecting her image. Now that practical prediction efficiency has been reached, and the numbers of students who can be successful exceeds the numbers that can be admitted, our attention has shifted from the predictor problem to the criterion problem.

THE CRITERION PROBLEM

In a very real sense we have evolved from a sorting process to a selection process. More than ever before, we have begun to ask ourselves what should the basis for admission be? If we have more potentially academically successful students applying than we have vacancies, then indeed, what should the criterion for admission be? A surface examination reveals very quickly that this type of question can only be answered by obtaining some insights into even broader questions. What is Boston College, what can Boston College do, what types of students are best able to maximize the opportunities that Boston College has to offer?

Since Boston College is a Catholic University, this fact suggests that Boston College is willing to transmit the body of the Catholic faith in a scholarly and intellectual way. It means that Boston College wishes to establish a true Christian community which will be able to encourage dialogue and interaction among disparate groups, Jesuits and students, faculty and administrators. This type of community is one which is permeated by a Christian ethic which places a premium on human dignity. This distinctive aspect of Boston College is as old as the roots of the Ratio Studiorum, but as recent as the outcroppings of Vatican II.

The fact that Boston College is a university suggests the need for considering a host of intellectual and educational factors. The basic nature of Boston College is perhaps best expressed in the philosophy that will permit her to graduate both scholars and workers, but scholars and workers who are also Christian gentlemen or gentle-women.

Our follow-up studies of graduates reveal the inadequacy of the grade-point average as the sole criterion for selecting students for college and for ultimate professional competence. All of us within our own experience have seen adults achieve success in their fields of endeavor even though they were not ranked at or near the top of their class on graduation day. It didn't require much imagination for us to recognize that our successful teachers are not only able, but also dynamic and human, successful nurses are not only mentally capable, but also patient and compassionate, successful business men are not only intelligent but also efficient and productive. To the extent that our research indicates that the possession of these or similar human traits are requisite for success in the various professions, our admission committee will want to determine the extent to which a student possesses them. The same research suggests that a student's probability of success does not necessarily increase as his College Boards increase. As a matter of fact, assuming that a student has the minimum ability to be successful in his field, then his probability of success will depend more on his possession of certain non-intellectual traits than on his mere mental ability.

To be sure, an admissions policy which failed to consider intellectual potential would be impractical and ludicrous. The amount of academic potential that a person needs, though, will depend on the type of program that he wishes to pursue. In many cases, a student's education at Boston College is not terminal. The students, in increasing numbers, are going to aspire to graduate and professional schools. The graduate and professional schools increasingly are raising their academic standards for admission. One would have to question seriously Boston College's service to her students and to her traditions if she were to accept pre-medical students who couldn't get into medical colleges, or prospective physicists who couldn't get into graduate schools. Of course, even in these instances, the expectation is that these candidates will also possess certain desirable human qualities.

This manner of thinking is seen in action when it requires us, more than ever before, to concentrate on not merely the top part of the class, but equally on the bottom part of the class. In practice, this means that the lower section of the applicant group is searched to determine if there may not be valid reasons to accept some of these students. The top section of the group is searched to insure there are no inhibiting factors which would suggest that some in this group would not be successful.

It was not more than a few years ago that colleges that were concentrating on raising their level of admission came to the realization that no matter how high a cut-off point on predictive averages that they were able to reach, they would still have a bottom quarter in their class. No matter how selective the college, how competitive the admissions standard, the bottom quarter cannot be eliminated. This realization leads us to the obvious conclusion that this 25 per cent of the class cannot solidly justify their admission into the university on the claim or unwarranted hope that they would make an academic contribution by way of grade-point excellence. Does not the university, however, honor excellence in many different areas, you may ask? The university community, indeed, thrives on the demonstration of excellence in almost all areas of human endeavor. For example, it seems reasonable to us that the contribution that some students will make to the B.C. community will result from their being socially sensitive, being dynamic leaders, possessing a high level of maturity, having an acute aesthetic appreciation, being generally likeable or perhaps their contribution will reside in the fact that they have obvious character and will make good citizens and good alumni.

Again, once we are able to decide that two students possess equal academic equipment to be successful at Boston College, should preference be given to one if he has been a debate tourney winner, an accomplished violinist, or perhaps even a talented soccer player? Our admissions committee would answer affirmatively. Thus, in deciding among those students who can produce at least satisfactory academic records, it seems to us to make more sense to accept those students with manifest human skills than to accept those who not only will not make grade average contributions but who will not make personal, social or extra-curricular contributions. What we are suggesting, of course, is that college admissions is expanding from the merely intellectual domain to take into consideration some of the more non-intellectual aspects of students' backgrounds. This point of view is not only more comprehensive and realistic, but more importantly, it is more human and more Christian.

Once we begin to understand the factors that are important in constructing a distinctive type of community at Boston College, we can more clearly understand the importance which is placed on an application from the child of an alumnus.

Historically, but without the benefit of empirical data, Catholic higher education has been on the academic defensive for several decades. Critics from within as well as outside of American Catholicism have told us how unscholarly and how lacking Catholic colleges have been in establishing a strong intellectual tradition and culture. One of the most effective means of strengthening a discernible ethos at Boston College is to recruit the sons and daughters of Boston College graduates who are products of a home which has been characterized by a specific type of value structure, which has honored a certain code of conduct, and which has established certain steadfast principles of personal behavior. Increased numbers of alumni children in each of our freshman classes provide a stability, an important ingredient, which cannot emanate from any other source. The importance placed on this consideration alone resulted in our accepting more children of alumni in the Class of 1970 than were graduated in the entire Class of 1930.

This fact means that no son or daughter of an alumnus who applied this year, on schedule, who had the background and potential to be successful in his chosen field, was rejected by Boston College. In some cases, the candidates were considered to be borderline in their backgrounds and on their predictive averages, and as a result may have been accepted on a probationary basis, which was a reflection of our concern for their academic futures. It is fair, however, to say that only when the risk of incurring academic failure was too great to be overlooked was a child of an alumnus rejected. In these cases, the admissions committee did not feel it was rendering the alumnus a service by exposing a student to a portentous situation. The point is established that Alma Mater recognizes the advantage of including increasing numbers of sons and daughters of alumni in her freshman classes.

... AND NOW ADMITTANCE

These, at least, are the objectives; these are the ideals. Putting them into operation required some internal modifications both in our structure and in our thinking.

Changes that have taken place in American high schools as well as in American society, especially since Sputnik, have changed the status of the student who is now seeking admission into college. In addition to being better prepared for college than he was a few years ago, the high school senior is now faced with a vast variety of professional opportunities when he enters a more complicated world. The availability of new and different and even unknown opportunities makes it unrealistic to ask the freshman students to commit themselves unequivocally to a single subject matter discipline when they enter college. Two years ago our freshman curricula were made more fluid and more flexible so that a freshman would have more opportunity for academic probing and exploring before he was required to make a final curriculum decision.

The last several years have also witnessed our placing a special emphasis on the bi-lateral aspects of the admissions process. The totality of the admissions process is often seen as the college's considering the qualifications of students and then making a decision which will affect their entire destiny. Too often, little attention is given to the student and to the admissions decision that they must make. In many respects, in this exchange, the college or university has an advantage since it has ready access to all of the relevant aspects of the student's backgrounds. It is far more difficult for the student to know the colleges he is considering than for the colleges to know her applicants. In order to equalize this disadvantage, Boston College has reproduced countless charts and tables, as well as literature to enable a prospective student to know us as well as we know him. In addition, a number of students are also invited to spend a weekend at the University so that they may have an opportunity to know Boston College, its campus, its facilities, its academic climate, and its community as well as possible before they are required to make their admissions decisions.

In order to permit a more comprehensive insight into the whole student and to insure that an applicant can be known as a person as well as a student, we have doubled the size of our application form for admission during the past year. This enlarged form provides us with five times as much personality, biographical and environmental data as was garnered previously. This change is an obvious reflection of the emphasis that is placed on the whole man.

In order to insure that Boston College will be able to attract students who will be able to thrive and grow in her milieu, vast sums of money are required to subsidize those students who are selected, who are in need of financial assistance. In the next academic year, over $2,500,000 will be available to undergraduate students from the University scholarship funds, National Defense Loan Funds, and campus employment.

Perhaps the greatest problem this year, in attempting to put into operation the ideals delineated above, was a shortage of dormitories. An increase in applications, coupled with dormitory requests from 39% of the students living within a 25 mile radius of Chestnut Hill created our greatest shortage of dormitory accommodations. Even though Boston College is committed to Boston by name and by tradition, it is evident that additional dormitories will be a necessary change, if only to accommodate resident students who come from the Greater Boston area.

THE RESULT — THE CLASS OF 1970

Perhaps partially in their own defense, colleges during the past several years have been inclined to describe their prospective freshman classes by citing their mean or average college board scores. This practice was soon popularized by national magazines and consequently expected by the public. The tendency to attempt to describe a class in merely quantitative terms is certainly understandable and a reflection of American's penchant for a kind of practicality which attempts to reduce even the immeasurable to terms that can be grasped, understood, and interpreted. This year, the freshman class that has been admitted to Boston College has several distinctive features that cannot be appreciated merely by knowing the few points that may separate its mean scores from other classes, or indeed from the freshman classes selected by other colleges.

If you were to examine the Class of 1970, you would undoubtedly find that it is better characterized by its diversities, rather than by its commonalities, and better discerned by its qualitative features rather than by its quantitative ones.

Intellectually, the freshmen will range from the average to the superior. Religiously, they are Catholic, Protestant and Jewish. Ethnically, they are caucasian, negroid, and oriental. Culturally, in some cases at least, they are disadvantaged, but in many more they are advantaged. Vocationally, their aspirations touch on hundreds of professions, from that of an astronaut to a zoologist. You will find that they have read a great deal, have traveled rather widely and are interested in tennis, golf, bridge and Joan Baez. When we compare them with last year's freshman class, you will find that they will number about 1,550, their average college boards are about the same, their ranks in class are more impressive, but they do seem to be slightly taller and heavier than they were a year ago.

Whether the admissions process that has brought them together can be described as brilliant or illogical, contemporary or anachronistic, this class has been selected with the hope that some day you and I can point to its members and find Christian scholars and Christian workers, and in both cases, Christian gentlemen.

Mr. McIntyre, a graduate of the Class of 1957, is currently serving as Assistant Director of Admissions and will become the Assistant Director of Student Personnel Services.

SUPERIOR GENERAL OF JESUITS

The Province of New England to
His Paternity
Peter Arrupe
Twenty-eighth Superior General of the Society of Jesus
Greeting:

On the day of your coming to us, we the Brothers, Scholastics, and Fathers of the Province of New England welcome you with fraternal affection and with gratitude for the vision you bring us of a more profound union with our Father. As we rejoice that you have accepted the offer—Omnis pro te, Domine, in the words of the Lord, the Scholastics and Brothers at their places in the Assembly. At this season of change and renewal, our ancient charters are being uttered once more in the beautiful language of Our Lord's compassion to the multitude. With you we pray that God restore to us our Brother's understanding of the hunger of his own time, that God strengthen our common poverty of heart, and teach us to fight the love that casts not every fear. A Priest to serve in a time of danger, thankful for three hundred years of labor and prayer since the Society planted the Cross in New England, we look out from the vantage of this historic day. As you, to the past and future generations of our land and of our people that we today, our position, in obedience to our Father.

On April 4, 1966, the New England Province of the Society of Jesus welcomed the Very Rev. Peter Arrupe, S.J., the Superior General during his visit to the University. Shown above are the greetings of the Province to Fr. Arrupe on this occasion.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I've just finished reading for the third time, Anthony Mooney's article "Between Darkness and Dawn", reprinted in the Winter issue of the Alumni News. Aside from the expected feeling of sadness at a youth's passing and pride in the kind of people Boston College produces, I find myself pervaded with an extreme amount of gratitude for being privileged to have attended this great university.

So often since graduation I have realized how very fortunate it was for me to have been able to mature spiritually, physically and mentally in the shadow of the Heights. I'm sure most Alumni have a certain tender feeling for Alma Mater, but I truly believe that no stronger exists than that which is present in those who really appreciate the value of their days at B.C. Like Dave Spangler, the most important aspect of B.C. was the people who helped us become Christian adults. Believe me, for most of us, the Jesuits, along with some splendid lay teachers, are the finest influences most of us will encounter in our entire lifetime.

Unlike Dave however, for most of us, the awareness of Boston College's greatness does not come until much later. Like Dave, B.C. meant many things to me; the most precious gift was the ability to see, to understand and to appreciate the world around us with the attitude of a Christian woman.

Sincerely,

Kathleen (Donovan) Goudie, '66

CCLXX ANNOS AD MAJOREM DEI GLORIAM

FIVE BOSTON COLLEGE JESUITS

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARIES IN SOCIETY

Left to right: Fr. Martin P. Harney, S.J., Fr. Francis X. Weiser, S.J., Fr. Robert Flanagan, S.J., Fr. James M. Kilroy, S.J., Fr. Thomas McLaughlin, S.J.

THIS year at Boston College, five Jesuits will celebrate anniversaries which total 270 years of service to God and the Society of Jesus. Of the five, Rev. James M. Kilroy, S.J. is observing his 70th year as a Jesuit, while the others celebrating their 50th anniversaries are Rev. Martin P. Harney, S.J., Rev. Francis X. Weiser, S.J., Rev. Thomas McLaughlin, S.J. and Rev. Robert Flanagan, S.J.

Fr. Kilroy who is 89, was born near the original Boston College in the South End and has the distinction of knowing all but two of the twenty-two presidents of the University. He was ordained in 1911 by Cardinal Gibbons at Woodstock College, Maryland, taught at St. Francis Xavier College, N.Y., Georgetown, the Regis and Loyola schools in N.Y. and served as pastor of St. Ignatius Loyola church, N.Y. Fr. Kilroy is the oldest Jesuit in the Province and was the first Provincial of the New England Province of the Jesuits.

Perhaps one of the best known of the jubilarians is Fr. Martin Harney, whose association with Boston College covers a span of forty-three years. A native of Lynn, Fr. "Martin" entered the Society in 1916 at St. Andrew-on-Hudson, Poughkeepsie, N.Y. and in 1923, as a scholastic, had his first teaching assignment at the Heights. After his ordination in 1929, he again taught at the college, spent a year of study in Wales and has been a Professor of History at the college since that time. In his period of teaching he has probably taught more students than any other professor, numbering among his "alumni" three bishops and over five hundred priests. A prolific writer, he is the author of "The Jesuits in History," "Good Father in Brittany," "Brother and Sister Saints" as well as numerous other pamphlets and brochures. The Eire Society of Boston awarded him its Gold Medal in 1965 for his contributions to Irish culture and scholarship and as an indication of his place in the affection of his students, the Class of 1962 dedicated the Sub Turri to Fr. Harney.

A native of Charlestown, Fr. Robert Flanagan also entered the Society in 1916 and while his career has been primarily in the classrooms at Holy Cross and Boston College, he has also enjoyed parish duties in Worcester and at St. Mark's in Dorchester. In his earlier days, Fr. Flanagan taught at St. Peter's Preparatory School in New Jersey, then rhetoric and debating at Holy Cross and logic and metaphysics at the Heights, where he is now a professor emeritus.

Fr. Thomas McLaughlin, who entered the Society with Frs. Harney and Flanagan, has had a career encompassing teaching, missionary work and business. As a scholastic he taught physics at the Heights beginning in 1923, then was assigned to the Jamaica Mission, where he also served as administrator of St. George's College and was treasurer of the Jesuit mission activities. He was recalled to the Province in 1938 and made purchasing agent and the next year was named Treasurer of the New England Province.

Well known as the "Christmas Priest," Fr. Francis Weiser was born in Vienna, Austria and entered the order there in 1916, and was ordained in 1930. For seven years he was pastor of Holy Trinity Church, known as the German church and has been at Boston College since 1961 as a professor of Philosophy, in addition to teaching philosophy and German at Emmanuel College. Fr. Weiser, who acts as spiritual counselor in the School of Education is the author of over twenty volumes which include novels and biographies and books on the liturgy and Christian customs. Famed for his retreats his newest book on the Holy Land has now gone to its second printing. Because of his work as the Diocesan Director of Relief for Central Europe following World War II, and other accomplishments as an author and teacher, he was awarded the Golden Cross of the Order of Merit by the President of West Germany.

To these men of God, dedicated to service in the Society, greetings:

Ad Multos Felicissimos Annos!

BOOKSHELF

"Dialogue With Myself," by Rev. Martin C. D'Arcy, S.J., Trident Press, N.Y. 179 pp, $4.95.

Father Martin D'Arcy has long been a familiar figure in the philosophical landscape of the English-speaking world and has now become a familiar presence on the Boston College campus. His philosophical works, rooted in Thomism, have made substantial contributions to several present-day disciplines—"The Nature of Belief," "The Mind and Heart of Love" and "The Meaning and Matter of History," to name but three. The nature of these works, as much as a natural reserve in the author, showed us little of the idiosyncrasy of the man, Martin D'Arcy. His latest book, one of the distinguished Crede series, is much more helpful. We are brought into the study of a scholar.

The book is not what one might be led to suspect. It is not an autobiography. It is not a delineation in extenso of Father D'Arcy's philosophy, nor his theology; nor is it a systematic explication of his various positions; nor is it in any sense a confession. He is not out to tell us anything about himself except by what paths of reasoning and intuition—or interpretation, to use his word—he arrived at his conviction of the uniqueness of the Catholic answer to the mystery of life.

To say that he arrived at a conviction is to use the language of pilgrimage, and not quite accurate. Father D'Arcy was born into the household of the Church, and his "dialogue with myself" arose from his continuing examination of the ubiquitous alternatives to his own expanding illumination.

"I end where I began," he writes, "with certain beliefs, and these I have grown to enjoy more and more firmly and personally with the years." Later he says, what the book makes clear: "My belief does not stifle my inquisitiveness; it excites it." There is an eclecticism in his approach to the deepening of understanding. With a gift for empathy he uses the technique—which he himself urges on those approaching Christianity—of seeking a like-mindedness, in gathering insights from Dr. I. A. Robinson, the author of "Honest to God," from theologians Oscar Cullman, Karl Barth, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, Kierkegaard and others; from philosophers A. J. Ayer, Kant, Marcel, Sartre, Nietzsche, Gilbert Ryle and others, from poets like Father Hopkins and David Jones and Langland, from priest-scientists like Teilhard de Chardin.

We follow a thread with him out of the labyrinth and leave the Minotaur behind. The course is rambling but not repetitive, although the twistings of the labyrinth come back on each other. Personal influences are disclosed and personal preferences acknowledged, but the role of reason is never relinquished. The dialogue is strictly with himself and he never undertakes difficulties that were not his own. This leaves large areas of our consciousness of the 'other' untouched. For instance, the problem of the existence of evil is discussed minimally.

For me, the most fascinating chapter is one entitled "The Masks of God," in which he deals altogether to briefly with this area of proliferating interest for the modern world—the layers of personality, the masks men wear, the person, the persona—relating it to the Incarnation itself.

"The capital importance of the mask," he writes, "comes from this—that it has from time immemorial been the active manner in which man has chosen to hide and to reveal himself and act out his ideals. The mask serves, as nothing else can, to reveal a man's identity and also his relation with God." We are a people destined for paradox as well as Paradise.

The quotation above shows one aspect of Father D'Arcy's conversation with himself and us; its aphoristic bite. In a reconstruction that is also a ramble, much condensation is required and much of the book is seminal and sententious. He declines only to discuss his interior life, an action he believes suitable only for great sinners or great saints.

Perhaps there are some who will be disappointed at that. I am not among them; it is a reserve I salute. But I would hold him to a full-length book on matters for which present-day discoveries in anthropology and psychology have prepared us, and on which he had so tantalizingly touched.

"A Proper Bostonian, Priest, Jesuit," Diary of Fr. Joseph Coolidge Shaw, S.J., 1821-1851. Edited by Fr. Walter J. Meagher, S.J.

On September 18, 1847, Joseph Coolidge Shaw, a graduate of Harvard College, Class of 1840 was ordained a Catholic priest in the old Cathedral on Franklin Street, the site of the present day St. Thomas More Chapel. Scion of a famed Boston family, Shaw was born on January 22, 1821. His father, Robert Gould Shaw was a successful merchant and real estate developer and his mother, Elizabeth Parkman was equally well known as the aunt of famed historian Francis Parkman.

Within the Shaw family there were other names connected with the early history of old Boston. His brother Gardiner married Cora Lyman, whose father founded and endowed the Lyman School for Boys in Westboro, and built the Lyman Mansion in Waltham. Another brother, Quincy, married Pauline Agassiz, daughter of the Swiss born naturalist, Alexander Agassiz. Shaw's brother Francis was the father of Robert Gould Shaw, who died while leading the first colored regiment assembled during the Civil War and whose name is perpetuated by St. Gaudens' monument on Boston Common and the naming of the Robert Gould Shaw junior high school in West Roxbury. Shaw's great grand nephew, Gardiner Howland Shaw, who once served as Assistant Secretary of State was awarded an honorary Doctor of Civil Laws by Boston College in 1944. Shortly before his death in 1965, Gardiner Shaw set up his entire estate in memorial to his great grand uncle and cousin, to be known as the "Joseph Coolidge Shaw-Robert Gould Shaw Foundation," whose purpose is to be the rehabilitation of criminals.

JOSEPH COOLIDGE SHAW, S.J.
From a copy of a painting done while a seminarian in Rome.

While at Harvard, Joseph Shaw was an excellent student, being among the first eight in Phi Beta Kappa as well as a member of the Hasty Pudding Club. Upon graduation, as was the custom of the time, he went to Europe for further study and while on a trip to Rome, he was introduced to an English Jesuit, Fr. Thomas Glover. Subsequent conversation and discussions together led to his conversion and in 1842 he was baptized and received confirmation from Cardinal Acton in Rome. Returning to study law at Harvard, he was instrumental in converting one of his classmates of 1840, Edward Holker Welch, who followed Shaw into the priesthood and the Society of Jesus. Fr. Welch later became an incorporator and trustee of Boston College and the present Welch Dining Hall as well as one of the dormitories is named in his memory.

Convinced that he had a vocation, Shaw returned to Rome and entered the College of Nobles while attending the Roman College. Listed among his classmates were men later to become prominent in the Church: an American convert, Pierce Connolly, whose wife Cornelia founded the Sisters of the Holy Child; John Newman, the future Cardinal and William Clifford, who later became an English Bishop. Although he had not completed his theology, he was allowed to return to Boston, where he was ordained by Bishop John Fitzpatrick. While serving at the Cathedral in Boston, he also acted as chaplain for the Sisters of Charity at the original orphanage, St. Vincent's in South Boston, the forerunner of today's Nazareth in Jamaica Plain.

Plagued by ill health, Fr. Shaw went to St. Joseph's Seminary, then conducted by the Jesuits of Fordham to complete his theology. After much consultation with his confessor, he was finally allowed to enter the Jesuit Novitiate in Frederick, Maryland, where in 1851, just six days before his death, he received the last Sacraments and took his vows in the Society.

Long a proponent for a Jesuit College in Boston, Fr. Shaw willed his insurance to Boston College, even before its founding, as well as nearly 1200 volumes of theological and literary works to the library. Shaw House, one of the dormitories, dedicated in October 1962 is named in memory of Joseph Coolidge Shaw, S.J., perhaps the first benefactor of the University. For a student of early Boston-Jesuit history, this diary is recommended reading.

SPORTS REPORT

TRACK

Coach Bill Gilligan's track team opened the 1966 outdoor season on April 16 by playing host to the first Relay Carnival ever held at the Heights.

The site was, of course, the handsome new Jack Ryder Memorial Track encircling the gridiron of Alumni Stadium. It was an instant success and will undoubtedly become an annual affair.

Manhattan's deep and talented team raced off with the championship, but not before being pressed to the wire by

It was somewhat ironic when B.C. and N.U. finished in a deadlock in the Relay Carnival since the Huskies had not been beaten in duel competition in over 3 years and had a 28 straight record intact with a dual meet scheduled against Boston College on April 19th.

Captain John Fiore is said to have delivered an inspiring talk to his teammates the night before the Northeastern meet. The National Champion hammer thrower and his teammates reported to the Ryder Track with fire in their eyes and upset Northeastern 75 to 74 for a truly tremendous victory.

April 26th was the date of another dual meet at the Heights with Boston University providing the opposition. B.C. literally lambasted the Terriers by a 98-60 score.

In the recently run Penn Relays at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Captain John Fiore topped the field, as usual, in the hammer throw with a toss of 192'9" as he continues to "warm up" for defense of his national title in June. Bill Norris, the IC4A 3000 meter steeplechase defending champion, placed 3rd in a rugged field. Bill had a siege of mononucleosis last fall and winter and is just rounding into top form again.

Outstanding individual performers so far this spring have been: the aforementioned Captain Fiore (who will undoubtedly throw over the 200 ft. mark again and retain his crown); Bill Norris, who excels at the mile, 2-mile, and runs a leg on distance relay teams as well; sophomore sensation Jim Kavanagh, a likeable redhead from Providence who does so many things so well, but is outstanding in the hammer (he's thrown over 180' already), discus, and shot put that people are figuring him to keep Fiore's title at the Heights for a while to come; Larry Jeffers, a big sophomore from North Wilbraham with a strong stride is tough to beat in the 100, 220 and 440; Chuck Zaikowski, a junior from Providence, a fine hurdler; Mike Conley, a senior from North Quincy, a topnotch distance runner; and Joe Kopka, a junior from Providence, has turned in performances picking up valuable points despite being bothered by a painful hamstring pull.

Coach Bill Gilligan is happy to have the services of football stars Dick De Leonardis and Bob Hyland. Dick is dash man who has covered the 100 in 9.8 and Hyland is a big (6'5") strong our own Eagles and a strong Northeastern squad. Manhattan finished with 64 points while Boston College and Northeastern tied for second with 61 points each.

Other team results were: Holy Cross, 41 pts.; UMass, 25 pts.; Rhode Island, 23 pts.; Springfield, 19 pts.; UConn, 16 pts.; Dartmouth, 16 pts.; Boston University, 10 pts.; Notre Dame, 8 pts.; Wesleyan, 5 pts.; Bates, 2 pts.

This was an excellent beginning for what has thus far proven to be one of the better outdoor seasons ever for the Eagle runners.

(250 lbs.) senior guard who was good enough to take first in the shot against BU.

Basketball Captain Ed Hockenbury has chipped in with some big points too. He threw the javelin far enough (162'6) to take first in the B.U. meet, and 2nd in the N.U. meet. These accomplishments are registered, incidentally, in between baseball practice and baseball games since this 3 sport star is also the first string catcher on the varsity baseball team.

BASEBALL

Eddie Pellagrini's baseball team has also jumped off to a rather sensational start.

Led by Captain Tom Anderson, a slick fielding senior from Dorchester, B.C. won its first six games of the season before bowing to Northeastern.

The Eagles flew past M.I.T. 8-3, Rhode Island 5-4, Springfield 4-0, Dartmouth 7-5, Harvard 3-0, Tufts 7-1, were rained out against Seton Hall and Colby just before and after the Northeastern 3-9 loss and then bounced back with a 5-1 win over Providence in the last game played before we went to press.

It is perhaps the best start in the past few years for the Pellagrini men who have done well enough to be in the New England (District I) playoffs almost every year and who represented New England in 1960 and 1961 in the College World Series at Omaha.

The '66 Eagle nine is a well balanced team with better than expected pitching, good speed and pretty good scoring punch.

The pitching corps is headed by veteran Eddie Foley, a senior from Woburn best remembered for his quarterbacking ability on the football team. Ed had 3 wins, no losses thru May 1st and wielded a big bat to boot—(his healthy homer out of the park beat Dartmouth).

Head Baseball Coach Eddie Pellagrini may be looking ahead to another trip to Omaha.

Right behind Foley was a bespectacled junior from Portland, Maine named Bill O'Brien. Bill won the opener against M.I.T. on a raw, windy day and drew deserved praise for allowing but 2 men to reach on walks. He then proved it was no fluke by shutting out Springfield at Commander Shea Field and did not issue one free pass. Bill promptly followed this feat with another masterful shutout over an outstanding Harvard nine which had already played 10 games (including a southern swing). To add insult to injury, the game was won at Harvard and again O'Brien showed his amazing control by walking just one Harvard hitter.

Bill's bubble burst, however, when B.C. played its only poor game to date and went down 3-9 to Northeastern at the Huskies' field. The Eagles had 12 hits, 7 walks and, with a couple of errors thrown in, left 15 men on base.

Foley and O'Brien have won 6 of B.C.'s 7 games and thus the rest of the staff is somewhat untested. Rick Hutchison won the Rhode Island game in relief—and he's a veteran relief pitcher. Coach Pellagrini has a few young and inexperienced pitchers on the team who show promise of being good ones.

Going around the infield we find Bill

Kitley, a junior southpaw from Dumont, New Jersey, at first base. Bill is a good fielding first baseman and has hit well thus far. Fran Riley, a Cambridge senior, is at second. Fran's a veteran, can also pitch if needed and at present is B.C.'s leading hitter with a .538 average. Captain Tom Anderson, one of the better hitters in college baseball, is possibly the top shortstop in New England. At third base is a Wellesley Hills sophomore named Ed O'Neill. Ed is a good glove man and the fastest man on the team. He leads off, sports a .333 batting average and leads the Greater Boston League in stolen bases. Ed Hockenbury handles the catching duties and is as good a defensive catcher as you'll find in New England.

The outfield is a veteran one. In left field is senior Fred Prifty from Roxbury. The former English High star played third for the past 2 years but has played plenty of left field in the Boston Park League. Fred hits the long ball and does so consistently. The Eagle center-fielder is senior Ed McLaney a left handed Dorchester product. Mac is B.C.'s best ball hawk and a good clutch hitter. Mick Amick, a junior from Highland Falls, New York, is in right field. Mick is a left handed hitter considered to be B.C.'s best and Pelly bats him 3rd in the order.

FOOTBALL

Spring football practice ended recently with the traditional wrap-up game. Head Coach Jim Miller split the squad into Maroon and White teams. The Maroons were made up of the 1st, 2nd, and 6th units against the 3rd, 4th, and 5th units in White.

Captain Ed Lipson, a strong Senior guard from Lynn leads the 1966 Eagle gridiron squad.

The final score was 43-7 in favor of the stronger Maroon team, but the game and the 20 days of practice were satisfying to the Coach and his staff.

About 80 men reported for the initial drill. Returning lettermen numbered 26 and lettermen lost numbered 17 including the entire defensive backfield of last season, 3 stickout linemen, 3 topnotch ends, and the regular offensive quarterback.

These, then, were the main areas of concentration for spring practice and much was accomplished in each area.

In the defensive backfield Tom Carlyon, 6'0, 190 lbs. of Hazelton, Pa., is the only Eagle with any real experience under his belt. He'll undoubtedly hold down one of the four spots. Big John Blair, 6'5, 210 senior quarterback from Bridgeport, Conn., is still in the running for the offensive job, but his value to Miller might be as a defensive specialist so we figure him for the 2nd spot. The other 2 positions will probably be filled from candidates which include junior Al Giardi (Salem), Harry Pierandri (junior, Ridgefield, Conn.), Harry Connors (senior, Pittsburgh) and sophomore standouts John Salmon (Malden) and Jim Grace (Cleveland, Ohio).

Developing outstanding offensive ends has become a trade mark of Jim Miller. We may not have a Graham, Cronin, Whalen, Vargo or Stone-breaker at the Heights this year, but things are looking up. We lose Charlie Smith through graduation and Joe Pryor is academically ineligible, but along with veterans Len Persin, Gordie Kutz, Mike O'Neil and Dave Pesapane, there are a few sophomores-to-be who look real good—John Egan 6'4, 215 from Nutley, N.J. and Barry Gallup 6'3, 205 from Swampscott could be the starting offensive ends. They have the size, speed and hands that Jim Miller looks for in his receivers.

If Miller decides to go with Blair on defense, the all important offensive quarterbacking job would seem to be down to 2, possibly 3 men. The much talked about Dave "the Dart" Thomas, transfer from Duke, started the Spring game with the first unit. Thomas, who will be a sophomore in September, is a handsome young Stamford, Connecticut lad, 6'2, 200 lbs. and so highly publicized before he ever worked out with the varsity that the pressure was really on him. It hurt Dave, as well as his competitors for the job. Actually, Thomas looks like he'll be a real good one once he gains some experience. He's an excellent passer but has a long way to go in all around quarterbacking polish. Joe DiVito at 6'2, 210 is still fighting for the starting nod and Joe is certainly a good looking prospect. His main contribution last season was as a punter and he'll be a junior in the fall. Larry Marzetti's kid brother, Joe (sophomore in September) is the other name. Like Larry, Joe is such a gutsy performer he should not be counted out.

Congratulations are in order for Jack Magee who has been Bob Cousy's assistant for the past three basketball seasons. The likable Magee has just recently been appointed the new Head Coach at Georgetown University. Jack was a star basketball man on Don Martin's teams of the late 50's and we wish him the very best in his new career.

B.C.'s strength for the '66 season will be mainly in its running backs where Washington, D.C.'s Brendan McCarthy, a big 6'3, 215 lb. fullback with good speed and power, returns after a sensational sophomore year. He was good enough to be selected as the top sophomore in the East last year and with a season of experience and a tremendous Spring practice behind him, he's expected to have a great junior year. He'll be joined by three junior halfbacks with excellent speed who also had outstanding sophomore seasons—they are: Dick DeLeonardis (Pittsburgh), Terry Erwin (Beverly) and Paul DellaVilla (Schenectady). Dave Bennett of Andover is the best bet of the sophomores to see a lot of action. He turned in a great spring performance.

Another area of strength for the Eagles will be in the interior line where there's plenty of size, strength and experience offensively and defensively. Top linemen would be 6'5, 250 lb. guard, Bob Hyland; linebackers Bill Stetz 6'2, 230 lb., and Captain Ed Lipsen 6'1, 215 lb.; tackles Dick Powers 6'3, 250 lb., Tom Sarkisian 6'2, 250 lb., Doug Shepard 6'8, 265 lb., Ron Per-suitte 6'2, 245 lb. and center Mike Evans 6'5, 240 lb. Names of sophomores to be most likely to break in at interior line positions are: Kerry Horman 6'1, 245 lb. tackle from No. Attleboro; Dick Kroner 6'1, 225 lb. guard from Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Gary Andrachik 6'2, 200 lb. linebacker from Cleveland, Ohio; and Jerry Ragosa 6'3, 240 lb. tackle from Norwalk, Connecticut.

Brendan McCarthy, a Junior from Washington, D.C., B.C.'s great fullback, seems headed for a banner season in '66—possibly All America honors.

PARADE of CLASSES

14 JOHN S. KEOHANE 1147 Tremont Street, Boston

Regretfully we have received the news of the death of Very Rev. Edward L. (Leo) Hughes O.P. at New Orleans after a lingering illness. Born in Brighton, he left Boston College to join the Dominican Order. After holding many important positions in the Order including National Director of the Third Order of St. Dominic and Assistant National Director of the Holy Name Society he was appointed Provincial of the Chicago Province. After pleading the cause of Blessed Martin de Porres, he represented the American Order at the canonization in Rome at which time he sent us a first class relic of the Saint. He retained interest in the College and the Class, coming from New Orleans where he was Pastor of St. Dominic's Parish and where his illness developed, in 1964 to our Fiftieth Anniversary Celebration. May his soul rest in peace!

Father Joe Busam S.J. came from the College of the Holy Cross recently to attend the 229th Anniversary Dinner of the Charitable Irish Society of Boston. We were pleased to have him with us.

Bill O'Sullivan's grandson, Michael Finucane, has been accepted for admittance to the C.B.A. next September, following his brother who is there now. Michael's father is William Finucane (Holy Cross), nephew of the late Bishop Thomas M. O'Leary of the Springfield Diocese.

Tom Finnegan's daughter, Barbara, (New Rochelle) is teaching school at Hingham. Ed Sullivan of Harwich Port on the Cape gave his annual recitation on "The Irishman in Lent", at the St. Patrick's Day Dinner of the Clover Club of Boston. The applause which greeted this recitation gave testimony to the high esteem in which Ed is held by his fellowmen. At Boston College High School and at College he excelled in Oratory, Debating and Acting. Fred Doyle's son, Edward '55, has just joined the Brokerage Firm of Glorie Forgan, Wm. R. Staat's Inc. of Boston.

We were interested to hear of the family of our late classmate Dan Hurd formerly Superintendent of Schools in Woburn. His son Lieut. Colonel John L. Hurd S.J. is Chaplain at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and formerly was Chaplain at Okinawa. His daughter Sister Emmanuela S.P. teaches at Chevrus School in Malden while his daughter Sister Anna Louise S.N.D. teaches Music at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham.

Doctor Tom Reid's son, Tommy, is stationed at Panama with the United States Air Force.

John Kapples Boston College High School '10, Boston College '14, Harvard Business School '16 and LL.D Boston College, is semi-retired but sits on the sidelines and watches his Department Store Business in Quincy. He now has two grandchildren. We were classmates for those ten years and Jack has always been a loyal member of the class and a devoted Alumnus.

15 PHILIP J. BOND 18 Houston St., W. Roxbury

Congratulations to Rt. Rev. George S. Brennan, recently raised to the rank of Monsignor. Father George is Pastor of St. James Parish, Arlington.

Rt. Rev. George F. Wiseman, Pastor of St. Joseph's Parish, Wakefield, is now in good health and active. We missed him at the Fiftieth. John J. Walsh and his wife have recently returned from a vacation in Florida. John reports that his wife returned much improved in health. During his absence, his son and law partner, John Jr., managed the office. John Jr. is a Holy Cross graduate, a former Air Force captain and father of three daughters. Should you drop in to the eight o'clock Mass at St. Anne's Paulist Church, any morning, you will recognize the acolyte as Joseph A. Mahoney, the most experienced altar boy in the B.C. Alumni. Joe lives with his brother John, a retired postal worker at 204 Hemenway Street. This is a report on the family of George Sylvester Hennessy, retired Head of Department of Modern Foreign Languages, Boston English High, and now Faculty Adviser of a prominent Boston law firm. George's wife is the former Helen Conway, Boston Normal School, 1916. Because only Spanish, French, and Italian were spoken in the household, Helen found it necessary, and quite within her capabilities, to master these languages, to communicate with her husband and the three children. Bettina is married to Wilfred J. Pineault, a Foxboro teacher. Bettina teaches in Walpole. Both are now on sabbatical leave in Europe. She met in Barcelona a pen pal of twenty years' correspondence that dates back to early high school days. Helen, the younger daughter, holds a Ph.D. degree from Radcliffe, 1960. She is now studying in Louvain University under a Fulbright Scholarship. Her specialty is English Literature and the interpretation of poetry. With teaching experience at Cornell, Haverford, Swarthmore and Smith, she will become a member of the Faculty of Boston University in September 1966, with the rank of Associate Professor. George Jr. is a graduate of Boston College, 1957. He was released from the Navy as a Lieutenant, junior grade, following three years' service. He was awarded the degree of Master of Business Administration from Babson in 1964. He holds a responsible position in the Boston Gas Company.

Following is a report on Dr. John F. Bradley and family of 209 Lowell Street, Peabody. John is a graduate of Tufts Medical School, having been lured to the medical profession by the proselyting skill of our classmate, Frank Milward. John's wife is the former Anna Haskins of Pittsfield, Mass., and a graduate of Salem State College. The eldest of four children is Warren, a B.C. graduate who followed his father into the medical profession and is practicing in Southern California. Next is Barbara, Mrs. Frank Gallagher, a graduate of Simmons. Her husband is a heating engineer. The third is Robert, also of B.C. who majored in industrial psychology and is now employed at Merrimack College. He married Joanne Nangle of Danvers, a graduate of Emmanuel College. The fourth is Jean Frances, A.B. Smith College, and later a master from Leland Stanford Medical College in speech therapy. She is the wife of Robert Mooney, A.B. Holy Cross, and a master in chemistry from Harvard. Dr. John has 14 grand children, seven boys and seven girls. John is a man of many hobbies—cabinetry, oil painting, ceramics, mosaics, and the construction of electronic gadgets. He derives great satisfaction in the personality changes he sees in patients as they become completely involved in crafts for which they were not aware that they had aptitudes.

The Easter 1966 edition of the New England Jesuit has an interesting story on the career of our classmate, Father William J. Murphy, S.J. Eddie McCarthy, our much traveled member has just returned from a 46-day cruise. He looks wonderful. Father Tom McLaughlin will celebrate this summer, his Golden Anniversary as a Jesuit. Msgr. Doyle's sister, Anna, died on March 3, 1966. Kindly remember her in your prayers. Msgr. Dalton was elected President of the Catholic Hospital Association.

17 THOMAS D. CRAVEN
107 Barrett Street, Needham

Laetare Sunday Corporate Communion, Mass and Breakfast was an occasion that found eight of the class in attendance. Some of the usual attendants were in the Southland and unable to be present. The roll call was answered by Dan Daley, Jack Doyle, Walter Durnan, Ed Tobin, Bo Mahoney, Mose Murphy, Frank Heanue and Tom Craven.

Bo Mahoney, recently returned from Florida, showed marked improvement. He had a long recovery after his illness of last year and lost a lot of weight. He looks much better.

Dan Daley, retired from Boston School Department, keeps up with educational matters by doing substitute work in the schools.

Frank Heanue, retired from the Boston Globe, is planning on another trip to the Emerald Isle. This is becoming an annual event for him.

Les Shea passed away suddenly on February 9 while being taken to the Framingham Union Hospital from his Holliston home. For over 40 years he had been active in the practice of law, in his home town and in Boston. He served his town government as Selectman, Town Counsel, Chairman of the Zoning Board and was the author of the original zoning by-laws of the Town of Holliston. For almost 40 years he was associated with the Automobile Legal Assoc. Under his direction the ALA set up its network with garages, for which he was honored with the title of "Father of the Road Patrol of the ALA throughout the United States." It has been said that his services to the town of Holliston and its residents were monumental in number and in scope. St. Mary's Church was crowded by the large number of friends and associates who attended the requiem high Mass. The class was represented by Fr. Maurice Dullea, S.J., Tom Craven, Jack Doyle, Walter Durnan, John McCarty, Ralph McKeown, Maurice Murphy, Bill Reid and Charlie Sharkey. To Mrs. Shea, her three sons, daughter and to the brother and sister of our classmate, we extend our most sincere sympathy. May his soul rest in peace.

Msgr. Albert Shea, retired pastor of St. James Church, Boston, is now living in Regina Cleri, the home for retired priests, 60 William Cardinal O'Connell Way, Boston, 02114.

Msgr. Francis Flaherty, retired pastor of St. Mary of the Fish Church, Milton, is living in the rectory of that church.

John Flynn and Mrs. Flynn spent some time in Florida this winter. Their son, John Flynn, was with them part of the time. John, or Porky, as we all call him, will have the job of making the plans for the 50th Anniversary in 1967. How the years have flown by!

Prayers of the class and sympathy to the family of Harold Anderson recently deceased at Park Chester, New York. He leaves his widow and a son and daughter. He lost a son in the service in World War II.

Jim Rooney has two nephews in the Society of Jesus, Canadian Province; one ordained over a year ago and one recently.

John Sargent has been retired for four years and is really enjoying it. His son, John Jr., is graduating this year as an Electrical Engineer from the University of Dayton. His daughter teaches in the East Hampstead Long Island School System.

Only Clarence Greene and myself represented the class at the Laetare Sunday Communion breakfast. This is a very poor showing as there are quite a few classmates residing in the Metropolitan area.

Let's hear from you classmates. Any and all news solicited and appreciated.

19 FRANCIS J. ROLAND
10 Homewood Road, W. Roxbury

We regret to announce the death of our "Joe" Donohue on March 1, 1966. "Joe" was a teacher in the Somerville School Department and graciously accepted all congratulations for rearing a beautiful family of eight children on a school teacher's salary. We shall sorely miss "Joe's" friendly and quietly co-operative assistance in all our activities. Our deep sympathy is extended to his family. May almighty God grant eternal rest to his sincere and generous soul.

"Bob" Simmons has retired after many years of active service on the faculty of Boston English High School and is now living in Scituate.

On June 19, 1966 our Rev. Martin P. Harney S.J. will celebrate his golden anniversary of admission to the Society of Jesus. He will celebrate his anniversary Mass at 2 P.M. in St. Ignatius Church to be followed by a reception in McElroy Commons. All members of the class are cordially invited, solicited, urged and compelled to attend.

Jack Sheehan, Bob Pyne, Billy Bond, Gerry O'Neil, Dan Lucey, Forrest Levis, Joe Casey, Eddie Higgins, Frank Earls, Tom Gately and the class officers represented 1920 at the Laetare Sunday Communion Breakfast at the Heights, while Joe Joyce attended the New Jersey Club services.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Leo Aicardi, now a resident of Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, on the death of his wife, Hazel on March 5.

Harold Anderson passed away early in the year in New York. Requiescat in Pace. Dan Lucey, at this writing, is recovering at the Malden Hospital from an operation and promises to be with us on Alumni Day.

ALUMNI WEEKEND

The following classmates were present at the Laetare Sunday Communion Breakfast: Jack Burke, Joe Cusick, Arthur Donovan, Bill Dowling, John Dumas, Jim Gookin, Dr. Frank Gregory, Steve Griffin, Frank Hannon, John McGrath, Jerry Mahoney, Jack Mahony, Gene O'Neil, Hugh O'Regan, Mark Russo, Fr. Frank Sullivan, S.J., Gene Sullivan, Judge John Sullivan, and Gordon Irons.

Dr. Frank Gregory has done a great deal of traveling in recent years. Last year he was in the Orient from September until Christmas Eve, spending most of his time in Japan, Formosa, and Hong Kong. Last year he also went on a North Cape cruise, including Russia and Finland. The year before he visited many countries in South America. He says he has not yet retired but is trying to. We were all glad to see Frank on Laetare Sunday.

Hugh O'Regan's son, Fr. Hugh, Jr., is chaplain at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital.

I regret to report the deaths of four of our classmates: Frank Gilbert, Walter Cremen, John H. V. MacGrath, and Fred O'Hara.

Frank passed away March 9. He retired in 1963 after teaching for nearly 40 years at Boston Latin School.

Walter passed away March 26. He was principal of the Emerson District in East Boston. At the time of his original appointment as principal he was one of the youngest ever appointed to that position in Boston.

John passed away December 29 in Alhambra, California. He had been a retired professor of English at San Diego University, California.

Fred passed away February 27 in Medford. He was formerly Chief investigator of motor fuel sales in the state Department of Labor and Industries.

The sympathy of the class is extended to the families of our departed classmates, and also to Arthur Donovan whose wife, Mildred, passed away October 24, 1965.

22 NATHANIEL J. HASENFUS
15 Kirk Street, West Roxbury

Tragedy befell the class twice in March when two of our most esteemed classmates passed away suddenly. First was Arthur Joyce who died in Stamford, Conn. Arthur, editorial director of Baker's Weekly, only last February received the American Business Press Association's Jesse H. Neal award for outstanding journalism. Surviving Arthur are his wife and four daughters. Never to be forgotten by us was his championing of down-trodden Ireland in the days of the Black and Tans. Second man to die, the result of an automobile accident in Dedham, was Steven Velardo, principal of the Beethoven School in West Roxbury. While he was driving his stepsons near Dedham Square, Steve's car was hit and overturned by a car the driver of which suffered a fatal heart seizure at the scene of the accident. Steve died at City Hospital. Surviving him is his wife and three stepsons. Another recent death is that of William McNally who was with us at B.C. High.

On a happier note are several interesting items. First, Charles Collins has retired from his Vice Presidency of Old Colony Trust after a lifetime of outstanding banking achievement. Chet Prior has remarried and is happy in his new life and in his excellent work as an attorney for the B. & M. John Meade is now principal of the Charles Sumner School in Roslindale. His Sherwin School was one of the Boston schools that was burned by malcontents. Congratulations to Dan Hayes, whose son Dan '49 is now mayor of Cambridge. The choice could not have been a happier one. To cap all this happiness is the news that there is now a Dan III. Leonard Healy has retired and has moved to the Cape. We note that George McKim is the first classmate to make "Sunrise," the new Boston sports magazine. From Florida came the news that George made a hole in one. Ed McGreenerly has been made a partner in Draper Sears & Co., to climax a very successful career on the "street." Bob Walsh designed and supervised the building of the new chapel at Pope John's Seminary in Weston. John McKearin has returned from St. Louis and is living in Marshfield with Mrs.

McKearin and one son, his other children married and settled in the St. Louis area. Professor William Roche has retired from Boston State and haunts Widener Library where he is working on a volume of philosophy.

'23 MRS. FRANCIS L. FORD 9 McKone Street Dorchester, Mass.

The Annual Alumni Laetare Sunday Mass and Communion Breakfast at the Heights was quite well represented by the class of '23 and very much enjoyed. Those gathered there were Dr. Ed. Burke, Joe Crane, Ed Davis, Ted Garrity, Cecil McGoldrick, Dr. Len Morrissey, Connie O'Connor, Leo Tracy, Gaynor Wellings and your secretary. Maybe another year you can plan to be out there as it is always a fine get-together of all your friends.

Congratulations are in order to Ted Garrity on his recent marriage to Mrs. Marie Crehan of Medford. Ted and Mrs. Garrity have just returned from a vacation in Florida.

Ed Burke is now boasting of 5 Grandchildren, and speaking of grandchildren Cece McGoldrick has nine and Tony Comerford has ten. If any of our classmates can top this, please let me know!

Dr. Len Morrissey's son Leonard Jr. is with the Computer Division of General Electric Company.

We were very sorry to learn of the recent passing of Walter Dimmock's wife, Mildred, and the heartfelt sympathy of the class is extended to him and his family. May she rest in peace.

Al Bedard has recently moved his law office from 40 Exchange Place to 56 Beaver St. New York just in case any of you need legal advice or assistance. Al was up visiting his son who lives in Natick at Easter time.

John Flavin is now fully recovered from a very serious illness and heart surgery. He was confined to the hospital for quite some time and a long recuperation period at home.

Dr. Joe Delaney is planning his annual trip to Denmark to visit his two precious little granddaughters in the near future. He mentioned the fact that Fr. Tom Lane had paid him a visit a short time ago. This is always a most enjoyable occasion for old friends to be together.

Some time has elapsed since we heard from Frank Hickey and we learn now that Frank and his family have spent the summers of the past five years over in Europe. His daughter Cassandra is taking a sabbatical leave of absence from Medford High School where she is teaching to complete her studies at Fordham for her Ph.D. Another daughter Ramonda will receive her Master's degree at Tufts this June and Francis Jr. will be completing his studies for his Master's degree at Boston College. Congratulations Frank on a wonderful family.

'24 JOSEPH L. TRIBBLE 128 Rockland Ave., Malden

Frank Kelley is in his 28th year as Superintendent of Schools in Waltham. Saw Lorretta and Frank at the Laetare Breakfast. Their oldest, Dorothy, married to the Town Manager of Concord, has presented them with 3 grandchildren. Jim, AB Georgetown '60 and LLB BC '63 is practicing law in Mansfield. Frank, Jr. B.S. B.U. '65 is a Civil Engineer. The Laetare Breakfast was also graced by the presence of Charlie Duffy and two of his sons, Charles, Jr. AB Stonehill '63, M. Ed., Boston State '65 and Paul, a student at Northeastern. Alice, BC '59 has 4 children and Frank, AB BC '63 and MBA Columbia '65 is with Anheuser-Busch in St. Louis.

Our 42d Annual Mass for deceased classmates was celebrated on Low Sunday by Father John Murphy, S.J. At the Communion Breakfast at Alumni Hall Father John delivered a stirring and interesting account of the Irish Rebellion of 1916. He had spent three years preparing for his Doctorate at the Galway Division of the National University of Ireland, receiving his Ph.D. in Gaelic Studies in 1939. We hope to hear from him on Leprechauns at a later date.

Present on the occasion were Gene Campbell, our Toastmaster, Frank Mooney, Chris Duncan, Nick Corbett, Jim Doherty, Walter Carroll, Jack Pyne, Ed Barry, Joe Rooney, Connie Murphy, Syl Connelly, Charlie Duffy, Roger Saldarini, Tom Colcleran, Jim Kellaher, John Brown, Martin Murray, Ed (2-Mile) Murphy, and myself.

Chris Duncan gave a very informative report on the activities of his 23 year old son, Joe. A member of the Special Forces "Green Berets" he has just returned to the States with the body of one of his comrades. In Vietnam for a year and a half he had taken part in two parachute drops. One of these was near the juncture of Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam. They drop equipped only with their weapons and a bag of rice tied to one leg. They are supposed to live off the land. Drops are in units of 2 officers and 10 men. After landing they gather a group of natives whom they train. If they gather 200 who will join they would expect 20% to be Communists and have no way of spotting them except by observation in action. Because they have a year and a half of intensive pretraining the Green Berets feel they are in less danger because they are better trained to take care of themselves. Joe is happy to be home and is preparing to return to his studies at B.C. in the fall. He says the Montagnards are more stable than the coastal Vietnamese and because of their sterling qualities will eventually rule the country. He feels our effort there is necessary and worthwhile.

Walter Carroll reported on his trip to a Medical Convention in Tokyo, via Istanbul, Beirut and Bangkok. In Tokyo he stayed with a classmate from Medical School. Visited Tony LeBlanc's daughter, Sue, who is teaching at one of our Air Force schools ten miles out of Tokyo, incidentally teaching one of 8 First Grades at the Base. Walter says that a great part of the Buddhist agitation is political, not religious.

Pray for the souls of John Monahan, Father Ed Hart and Frank Reardon.

'25 WILLIAM A. REILLY 14 Arborway, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Once again our class has suffered a great loss. Gerard H. Slattery, popular as a student and alumnus, died February 17, 1966 after a long illness. His last visit with us was in 1965 when he served as Toastmaster of our 40th Anniversary Communion Breakfast. We

God hath not promised skies all-ways blue, Flower-strewn pathways all our lives through; God hath not promised sun without rain, Joy without sorrow, Peace without pain.

But God hath promised strength for the day, Rest for the labor, Light for the way. Grace for the trials, Help from above, Unfailing sympathy undying love . . .

all recall his outstanding performances as a student, in presentations by the Dramatic Club, (then coached by the late revered Fr. Will Murphy, S.J.). Later Gerry became a leader in the pioneer days of radio, after beginning as an announcer at WBET (the Transcript Station). Then he became Manager of WCOP and afterwards filled out his career in the Advertising business in various executive positions. He is survived by his wife Margaret (Hession), three daughters (Mrs. Nancy Clifford, Mrs. Jean Kougas and Mrs. Eileen Sullivan) and eight grandchildren. Requescat in pace.

William Tobin, Ass't Superintendent of the Boston Public Schools, took part in a State Department sponsored trip to El Salvador, Central America, in February. For the purpose of exchanging educational ideas, Boston School authorities are participating in the School-to-School program for mutual benefit. In December 1955, Ass't Superintendent Louis Welch visited El Salvador to evaluate the high school curriculum and offer suggestions. Bill Tobin's field of interest is the junior high grades. Some of our 1921-1925 teachers would be surprised that any of us in 1965 would be such authorities in the educational world. Little did they (or we) think then—that we would be Superintendents, Principals, Deans and Bishops in 1966.

In a review of Senator Saltonstall's career, after announcement of the Senator's decision to retire, it was stated that in 1944 when Senator Lodge resigned to join the Army, the Senator "gathered a few friends—Dan Lynch, Charlie Rugg and Carroll Means—and they decided to ask Sinclair Weeks to take the Senate seat?" The Dan Lynch of course was our "Red Dan," who presided so well at the January Clover Club dinner. Noted in that Clover audience was Al Hyland and Judge Anthony Julian. For the March Clover Club dinner, Fred Mahony returned from Florida to serve as Chairman of the Dinner Committee and Msgr. Arthur J. "Pat" Riley, delivered the Invocation. Joe Kozlowski and Gene Giroux were there also.

A welcome visitor recently was Tom Quilty who has recovered from an operation (cataracts) that kept him from attending last year's reunion activities.

Bishop Joseph Regan appears in a photograph ordaining his first two native Filipino priests in December 1965. The photo was supplied by Father Tim Howard who received it in a communication from his Excellency.

Frank Leavey was observed at length on a recent T.V. showing of a meeting of the Boston City Council. He is one of the Senior Members of the staff now.

Among those attending the Varsity Club Dinner and the Laetare Sunday Breakfast were Al Hyland, Eugene Giroux, Joseph Bond, Joseph Kozlowski, Gerald Grey and William Glavin.

Dr. Jim Conway is now Assistant Director of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton, where his son Jim Junior is located as an intern. What happens when the "intercom" announces "Call for Dr. Conway"?

Well, let me tell you! Did we set a mark for other classes to shoot at, on our fortieth! We had 82 bald eagles appear at our Parker House affair, chaired by Dr. Bob O'Doherty, toastmaster most capably by Bob Daley, and assisted by John Dorsey and Dr. Art Gorman, all properly tuxedo'd as befitted the occasion.

All the staunch regulars were there, plus irregulars whom we hadn't seen for umpteen years. We must confess that we could not say that they had not changed since our last view of them. Chairman Dr. Bob presented each with a complete list of the names and the addresses of all our living members, with proper Sub Turri page number, along with the ex-members as well as all our deceased classmates, whom we remembered in a brief ceremony. Who were the 82? Look them over: Chet Arnold, Hen Barry, Tom "turn down the volume" Barry, Capey Joe Beecher, Dr. Ted Brown, Frank Carney, Charlie Carroll, Frank Casey, Tom Cavanaugh, Tom Coakley, Postmaster Frank Colbert, Jim Collins, John Connors, Judge Bill Considine, Fr. Frank Corcoran, Msgr. Mike Costello, Pete Cotter, Ed. Digby, John "Skinhead" Dooley, Bill Duffy, Bill Dunn, Dr. Ed. Flynn, Fr. Jerry Foley, Dr. George Gowatos, Dr. Hen Groden, Eddie Harrison, Joe Hughes, Jim "Narrow gauge time" Kelly, Fr. Jim Lally, Paul Lewis, Ed. Luddy, Angus the MacNeil, Howie Mandeville, all the way from Portland, Oregon with family, Dr. Mol Matthews, Peter McDermott, John McMahon, Arthur "Red" McManus, Frank McOwen, Fr. Everett McPeake, S.J., Leo Monahan, Fr. Jim Monks, S.J., Judge Neil Moynihan, Eddie Mullowney and John "Sugar" Murphy, all the way from Chicago.

Surprisingly and suspiciously handing out business match cases Arthur Murray, then Msgr. Henry O'Connell, Gerrie O'Connor who had flown up only that morning from Venezuela, beautifully tanned, Charlie O'Malley, Msgr. Jerry O'Neill, Harry O'Sullivan, Syl. O'Toole, Tony Perry, Joe "Pop" Regan, J. Murray Regan, Frank "Red" Riha, Charlie Schroeder, Ray Scott, Fr. Jim Shaughnessy, Dr. Bob Shaughnessy, Bob "Tulsa" Shea, (Tulsa by way of Somerville, that is) Frank "Jake" Smith, Msgr. Matt Stapleton, Fr. Joe Sullivan, Billy "Malden" Sullivan, Msgr. Dick Vahey, O.P., Tom Walsh, Bill Hornby, (whose published name among the deceased was, like Mark Twain's, grossly exaggerated), Fr. George Kilcoyne, S.J., Tom Herlihy, Dr. Danny Sheehan, Fred Curley, Fr. Gerry Landrey, S.J., Mel Mc-Cully, Fr. Joe Mulligan, Fr. John Quinlan and Fr. Joe Shea, S.J.

We were honored with the presence of the president of the University, Fr. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., who spoke briefly in honor of our 40th, and with the presence at the head table of three Jesuits who had taught us as scholastics over 40 years ago, Fr. Martin Harney, Fr. Joe Kelly, and Fr. Andrew Bouwhuis, all favorite Jesuits. Now, you non 26ers who read these columns, go on out and match that for a 40th year group! Refreshments were ample and tasty as was the dinner, a tribute to Chairman Dr. Bob and his committees.

We topped the celebration off with a large group at the Army hockey game the following evening at McHugh, and some of the gang ate out together that evening.

Odds and Ends: At Laetare Sunday Breakfast were Frank Riha, John Dorsey, John Dooley, Frank Colbert, Dr. Bob O'D, Jodey Hughes, Tom Coakley, Charlie Schroeder and Art Murray et ego. Hen Groden's daughter Kathleen was recently married in Belmont to John F. Meskel, a B.C. boy and a lawyer. Tom Kelliher is now the Southern Division general manager of Tidewater Oil, operating out of Houston, Texas. Tony Perry is now retired from service of many years with the Bureau of Reclamation and works only in a consulting capacity; if you need a new dam around the house, look up Tony.

Lastly, a tip of the hat to the crowd who came long distances, many with their families to the winter dinner and stayed over at the Parker House, and a look ahead to the 8th annual Golf Outing at Wollaston with the old pro Dooley, Charlie Schroeder and Art Murray et ego. That's a really fine time, especially if you're hitting the ball. See you in June at our celebrating finale.

Last January Joe McKenney was appointed the Boston schools' Director of Personnel for collective bargaining. Both the teachers and the School Committee have been favorably impressed by Joe's work in this new field of action in the Boston schools. On March 30 at the Fargo Building, Joe was given a reception by the members of the Physical Education Department of the schools which Joe had headed for over 30 years. Bill McCarthy, Joe's former assistant, was toastmaster and Bill O'Brienberger was the principal speaker. Joe and Alice were presented round trip air tickets to Ireland in behalf of the two hundred guests, present an former members of the Phys. Ed. Department.

Monsignor Joe Lyons has been transferred from the pastorate of St. Vincent's in South Boston to the same position in a new parish, St. Eulalia's in Winchester.

Dr. Bill Marcell was the main speaker at the St. Patrick's Day dinner of the Charitable Irish Society on March 17. Bill's discourse on "The Day We Celebrate" was magnificent and is worthy of wide distribution.

Fr. John J. Connolly has been transferred to the position of pastor in St. Vianney's parish, Revere.

Fellow Alumni:

It is with great pleasure that we invite you back to the Heights for the weekend program as described on the opposite page. For the first time we have gone from an "Alumni Day" to an "Alumni Weekend", with the hope that many of our alumni who have gone far and wide since graduation, will return to see the new campus (38 buildings), renew acquaintances with the faculty and reminisce with your classmates and friends.

Every effort has been expended to assure a memorable time for all. Father Rector, the Alumni Board and Alumni Staff have been most cooperative in planning this event for you, the Alumni and Alumnae. We look forward with great pleasure to seeing you, young and old, enjoying all the activities planned; baseball, the Boston Pops, the Seminar and Supper Dance. Our plans are completed--fulfillment of a great weekend depends upon your early reservation.

Most sincerely, held on Jan. 22 at the Sheraton Plaza. The winner was Tom Clarke of Dartmouth College. The chairman was John "Smokey" Kelleher, 1928; the toastmaster, Joe Zabilski, 1941; the raconteur par excellence, Dave Lucey, 1940; the writer of the parodies, Jack Buckley, 1927. Among the head table guests was Bill Ohrenberger, 1927.

Jim Walsh has been seen frequently posing for photographs in his morning suit. His son, James Jr., was married in February to former Miss Boston, Barbara Roberts. Young Jim is a History teacher in Middleboro H.S. Jim's daughter, Marilyn, a teacher at Roslindale H.S., was married in April to Professor Louis Corsini.

We regret to announce the death on Oct. 2, 1965 of our classmate, Richard P. Quigley. We also regret to announce the deaths of Ray Finnegan's brother, Paul, and Pres. Frank X. Sullivan's brother, Joseph and Walter Waldron's father who died March 10 at the age of 91. Mass was celebrated by his grandson, Rev. Walter J. Waldron. Requesant in Pace.

Among the 1927 men at the Alumni Communion Breakfast was Judge Jeremiah J. Sullivan who continues to dispense justice in the Plymouth County Court.

Your correspondent would like to receive news items from classmates, their children and grandchildren, especially from those who live out of state. Next year we shall observe our fortieth anniversary of graduation and we would like to build up contacts to make this anniversary a memorable one.

'28 JOHN M. BARRY
40 Richmond Street
West Roxbury, Mass.

If the Internal Revenue people want to know why my tax return is not in on time, then Thomas O'C Murray will have to explain that the Alumni News notes are more important.

The Laetare Sunday Communion Breakfast, and the crowds that attend, never ceases to amaze me. They were all there—the old ones, the getting-there groups like ours, and the younger alumni.

This class was well represented. It's not easy to do all the telephoning and the follow-up mailing of tickets, but the reactions of the men are excellent.

Let's see now... there were Jack Barry, Dick Condon, George Corcoran, Jack Doherty, Owen Dooley, Maurice Downey, Luke Doyle, Charles Driscoll, Dan Driscoll and his sons, Dan, Jr. and David, Walter Gaudet, Mike Gilarde, Bill Green, Bill Harrington, John Halligan, John Kelleher, Jim Keith, John Mantle, Terry Martin, Joe (Law School) McCarthy, Mal McLoud and his wife Veronica, Frank Murphy, Vic Newton, Doc Nolan, John O'Loughlin, Gene Ploienicki, Jack Ryder, Art Tuohy, and Ed Watson. I think I have them all.

Alan O'Farrell (Commander, U.S.N. Reserve) was at sea on maneuvers at the time. Matt Gallahue was just getting over a virus, while Joe Fitzgerald called later to say that, while his intentions were good, he couldn't make it.

Jack Ryder denies vehemently that he was in the picket line during the newspaper strike, but who else would be marching in track shoes and running shorts?

Dick Condon's daughter, Ellen, Emmanuel, '65 will be married soon to John Cunningham, '64, now doing graduate work at Dartmouth.

Looking around at the Laetare Sunday gathering (and there were some 1800 men and women there!), the thought occurred that there are really two Boston Colleges. The older groups were the students who were at the Heights up to the four-building period. That period lasted until some time after World War II, when the size of the student body and the number of buildings increased. A rather good test of belonging to the pre or post-war Boston Colleges, is whether a man knows of the tunnel leading from the Tower Building to the now older Science Building.

Both groups have something in common—a warmth for Boston College no matter which their group.

And, of course, deep congratulations to John (Snooks) Kelley in winning the 400th game of his hockey coaching career. John, whose basso profundo voice has ripened to the point of perfection, may well be proud of the long years of coaching. He has continued to play American students and has disdained importing the boys from Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Now that our good cousins up on the Pike have made hockey a varsity sport, it will be interesting to see if they follow John's policy or try for instant-hockey-success by reaching up north to the cold country.

I stop at Charlie Kelly's Drug Store now and then, but the man is never around. His sons told me that he went to Florida in January and that he must be still there because the crates of oranges are still coming. Perhaps he is deep in the Seminole.

We have something of a feeling of envy when the class notes around us mention the annual class dinners. We just don't have them any more. Not for years. And there's a sure thought that we never appreciated all the work Luke Doyle did in making all the arrangements for them. While the rest of us Indian Chiefs sat around, Luke was the Brave who did all the work. Now that Luke has retired from the active job of the dinners, there is nothing. Well, he spoiled us, and now all of us Chiefs just do not know how to do the work.

There's an interesting note. Do you remember Gunnar Haugh who was with us through Junior Year and then finished with the Class of 1932? He is in the Pope John XXIII Seminary in Weston. As Gunnar wrote: "I was a sophomore at Boston College 40 years ago; now I am a sophomore again here in the Seminary."

With the new Science Building—to be used exclusively for Physics and Biology, while the older will be for Chemistry and Geology—the noose is drawing tighter. We are running out of building space. The land just isn't there. It's a wry thought that when Fr. Gasson first sought approval for the Chestnut Hill property, he could have had all the acreage out to what is now Hammond Pond Parkway. As it was, he had a terrific battle to get permission to buy the property we now have.

There's the sad news: Paul Shea died several months ago in Connecticut. He was a very strong part in those early class reunions we used to have.

Emory Zirpolo died early in the year. He was a teacher in the Somerville School Department.

I have just returned at this writing from the wake of Fr. Ernest Ford in Littleton. He was pastor of St. Anne's Church. He was well loved by the parishioners. Requesant in pace.

Jim Regan, the country stock broker, whose nun daughter Ann will graduate from Mt. '34 REV. JOHN A. SAUNDERS
St. Agatha's Rectory
432 Adams Street, Milton

The sympathy of the class is extended to John Bonner, whose father, Mr. Hugh Bonner, died in February. Also to Rev. John Wallace, who's brother, Rev. William Wallace, late Pastor of St. John Vianney Parish, Revere, who died in January. May they rest in peace. Also the mother of Jim Fay.

We note that Fr. John Wallace will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination on May 1, 1966, at the Immaculate Conception Church, Salem, Mass. Our best wishes and congratulations.

Rev. Martin J. Dolphin is now at St. Peter's Church, Dorchester. He left St. Mary's Parish, Winchester, after fourteen years of faithful service. (Some of our boys get around) James Larkin, once of Roxbury, but for the past twenty years in Japan with the U.S. Army has returned to Boston. Welcome home. Robert Ott has been re-appointed commissioner of Public Welfare for the Commonwealth of Mass. Charles Boyce, Richard Donohue, Tim's boy, was my excellent guide on a recent tour of the new science building at B.C. High. A very articulate young man. And speaking of B.C. High, "The Bugle" had a picture of Joe Keefe attending "Family Day" at the High School. Looks as young as ever.

It is always a pleasure to welcome some of our classmates to my native land, South Boston, Lou Musco at the evacuation Day Banquet, Bill Hickey and his charming wife, Marjorie, "Watching" the rare birds of Castle Island. (Those that fly.)

A recent issue of the "Pilot" had a picture of Charles Artesarni, Jr. relative to his work with the Gold Key Society at the Heights. See you at Alumni Day.

Msgr. Jim Manning has been named Pastor of St. Mary's Parish in Chelmsford. Congratulations to Jim on his new parish—and the fact that this year is the 25th Anniversary of his Ordination.

Charlie Dolan is still with the Taylor Publishing Co. in Dallas, representing them in the year book field. He expects to be in Boston to say hello to as many B.C.'ers, as possible in late spring. Everything is fine with Charlie—except that his two boys seem headed for Univ. of Dallas instead of the Heights. Fred Garrity, Director of Development at Marquette for the past five years, is recovering nicely from an emergency gall bladder operation, performed on-the-spot-of-the-moment, so to speak, on a trip to Boston in January. Everything is fine with Fred, too, except his boys are at Marquette." Fred passed on news that both Tom Duffy and Dan Boudreau are well and that Dr. Donel Sullivan is a neighbor in Green Bay.

Congratulations to George Goodwin on recent honors in the insurance field. State Mutual named him to the Circle of Honor, as a salesman having sold over one million dollars worth of insurance in the past year.

Bob Doonan has been promoted by the Continental Baking Co., Rye, N.Y., to the new position of Director of Sales Development. He was formerly Personnel Director.

Frank Delecar, public relations manager of Sikorsky Aircraft, has been selected to direct the 1966 fund drive of the Stratford Red Cross.

As I move in my limited circle, I am far from all-seeing, let alone all-wise, so please, so I can fill up this column. I need news and more news, from all of you guys.

This will be a banner year for the Clergy of our class. Six members will have reached the magic Silver Jubilee of their Priesthood: namely, Rev. Henry Barry, Rev. John Kieley, Rev. John F. McDonough, Rev. William McDonough, Rev. Daniel Hannigan, and Rev. John Palmieri.

A committee is planning a get-together for the evening of May 14 or 15 to observe this occasion. Classmates will be contacted by some member of the Class. Of course, we must remember that Monsignor R. Sennott, Pastor of St. Catherine's of Norwood was a Silver Jubilarian, last summer. He is back at St. Catherine's now after a long stay in sunny Italy while attending the last session of the Council. He flies his own plane and has had a pilot's license for 15 years.

Donna Phillips, daughter of Ed Phillips will graduate this June from B.C. School of Nursing. Young Ed is a sophomore at Dad's Alma Mater.

Fred Gorgone, the able Principal in the Wellesley Public School, was recently elected First Vice President of the Mass. Elem. Principals Association. He was Toastmaster at the recent dinner held at the Principals Convention at the Univ. of Mass.

Mary Ford, daughter of Dr. Fred Ford will graduate this June from Mt. Alvernia Academy, Newton. Her sister, Constance, will graduate from the 8th grade at this same Academy. Mary has been accepted at Nazarene College in Kentucky next Fall.

I received a nice letter from Tilley Ferdenzi. He is still associated with the N.Y. Journal American as Sports Editor. His mailing address is 26 Wachusett St., Rockville Centre, N.Y. He wants to be remembered to his buddies, Bob Cash and Al Tortolini. Tilley follows the Yankees and is the College Editor for Football. It would be nice to see him when those Yanks come to town.

John Donelan from Washington, D.C. announces that a new firm has been set up in Washington, D.C., namely John F. Donelan, John M. Cleary and John H. Caldwell at 914 Washington Building, 15th St. and New York Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C.

The Coveney's are the proud parents of 9 children and are expecting the stork for the tenth time soon.

Jim Doherty of Andover is a very successful insurance broker. He is a partner and Treasurer of Doherty Insurance Agency. He and Sheila are the proud parents of 5 children.

The Curtins from Belmont have done it again. I hope all of you had the opportunity to read the magazine article in the Boston Herald on Feb. 26, 1966. The article entitled "Lay Apostolate Susan in Land of Muktuk." This describes daughter Susan in her 2nd year as a teacher in the wilds of Alaska. She is the Asst. dean of the high school students, home economics teacher, drama coach, and physical education teacher. When she has some free time, she produces a play, organizes a skating rink and is often found teaching 8th graders about Boston's part in the American Revolution. We suspect she is teaching them some B.C. cheers or "FOR BOSTON." All this, George tells us for $3.85 a month. What a remarkable young lady.

John Bonner will take pictures at the drop of a hat. His pictures on the Bull Fights recently taken in Spain are beautiful, however, his gracious wife, Della covers her eyes when they are shown. Speaking of Bull Fights, Tom and Marie Saint are experts in the terms used, cheers, and history of this pleasant sport. They make a habit of taking trips just to see these spectacles. Am I right, Tom? O-lay.

The Gaquins are bubbling with joy at the success of their daughters, the oldest Audrey is a Junior at the College of New Rochelle. She is majoring in French and Russian. She was recently given a special award for Academic Distinction. Barbara is a freshman at Emmanuel, received first honors and is on the Dean's list. She was a Merit Finalist last year. Helen, the youngest, is a Freshman at Ursuline Academy.

Your correspondent and his wife, Julia, were the surprised guests at a party given by the Curtins at their home on Sunday, March 27. Present were Msgr. Sennott, Msgr. Quirk, Fr. Kietly, Fr. Adelman, John & Della Bonner, Tom and Marie Saint, Jim and Sheila Doherty, Bill & Lucille Doherty, Dr. & Mrs. Fred Ford, Tom & Audrey Gaquin, Ben & Marie Hines and Ed and Mary Phillips. The reason of the get-together was to remember us as we approach the Silver Jubilee of Matrimonial Bliss. We shall always be grateful to the Curtins and the other members present. Julia expressed our true emotions when she mentioned that she was proud to be a part of the greatest class of B.C.

Congratulations to all who have reached the Silver Jubilee stage.

James Jordan now resides at 69 Broadmeadow Rd. Needham. He is principal of the Brookline School Dept.

John Koumjian is Head of the Math Dept. at Watertown High School and is an able authority on Modern High School Mathematics.

Any ideas or plans for our Jubilarians of the Holy Priesthood will be welcomed. Please keep in touch with me.

I regret to announce the passing of Elizabeth Phillips, the mother of Ed. Phillips. She was called to her eternal reward in March. May she rest in Peace.

'38 THOMAS F. TRUE
37 Pomfret Street, West Roxbury
Since the last issue of Alumni News, we have had two gatherings of our class. Seated at our table for the Laetare Breakfast were Charlie O'Hara, Jim Regan, Dick Canavan, Paul Farrell, Frank Toomey, Paul Donahue, with Paul, Jr., Frank Finnegan, Jim Dailey, John Mannix, Jim Casey, Joe Hartigan, Bill Prior, Bill Finan, representing our class on the committee, Tom True, Ed Cady, Frank Ryan, Bob Power and Joe Butler.

Earlier in the Spring we had a very pleasant reunion at Alumni Hall. Dan Moran, sent a note saying that he could not attend. Peter Kirsliis gave an interesting talk on the use of the divining rod for the detection of water underground. Peter has three children; a daughter and two sons. From our clergy we had Fathers Dave Sylvester from St. Sebastian's, John McLaughlin, now serving his fourteenth year at St. Peter's in Plymouth, and George Everard now at St. Francis in Medford. Despite inclement weather, Henry Dean drove up from Naugatuck, Conn. where he is office manager for the Alloy Foundries.

Paul Mulken and Jake O'Malley had visited Skip Solari, convalescing at his home on Priscilla Rd. in Brighton. They said he is showing remarkable progress and would enjoy having any of us drop in to see him.

Bob Curtis' daughter Mary, a graduate of Emmanuel, is engaged to George Doherty, a B.C. grad.

The oldest of Bill Gorman's six children, Bill, Jr., is in the class of '69 at B.C. Ted Mantho is practising law at 50 State St. in Boston. Jake Gasman signed up a new client, Ed Supple. Ed's oldest, Ann Clare, is at Northwestern University, Susan Chandler School, 2 boys at Marion High, Frammingham, and the youngest, Gerard, attends St. Patrick's School in Natick. Jack Gately was with us early in the evening but had to leave to fly to New York on business. Jack's boy Peter, a junior at B.C., is on the debating team and is undefeated in his class as a wrestler.

Tony Ianecello, a practising attorney, is also associated with the Department of Corporation and Taxation. Bill Finan teaches in the Newton Public Schools and at Northeastern University. Paul Mulken's boy Paul, Jr., is graduating from B.C. High this June. Jim Casey's manager Joe Hartigan claims that they are ready to take on Cassius Clay. "In an Army intelligence test—maybe" quote Joe. Dick Canavan was unanimously elected chairman of our 30th Reunion which is approaching rapidly. Dick recently was appointed Assistant Principal of the Ralph Waldo Emerson School in Boston. He had been a reading consultant for the ABCD (Action for Boston Community Development). Frank Corbett's daughter is married to Maurice Dulleau, B.C. '62, a nephew of Fr. Dulleau, S.J.—former faculty moderator of athletics. Two of his boys go to Providence College and the third is at Archbishop Williams H.S. Walter Lapaisa, Tony Dinatole, Joe Powers and Frank Ryan enjoyed recalling the days when they were wearing Maroon & Gold uniforms.

John Castelli is living in Arlington. Ralph Luise has written several children's books. He has also written a play entitled "The Saving of Rome During World War II by Pius XII". Ralph dedicated the story to his comrade of the 351st Bomb Group of whom 317 were lost. John Dromey reports that he is "still" married to Father Larry Mullins S.J.'s sister Gene. They have four children. John is Associate Director of the Harvard College Fund. Jim McCarthy's son Emmett graduated with the class of '64. His daughter, a registered nurse, is engaged to be married.

Bob Powers has become a yachtsman. I think it was mostly his son Tony's idea. Tony is a student at B.C. High. Jim Dailey heads up the Data Processing Center of the Boston Schools, a rapidly expanding division of the system. Al Connelly is busy helping to organize a committee to arrange the celebration of Rev. Matthew Donovan, S.J.'s Golden Jubilee. Father Donovan taught many of us at B.C. High. Mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's Church in the North End and a reception at McElroy will follow, early in October.

We owe our thanks to Jack Guthrie, our "one man committee" for arranging this reunion.

My campaign Manager (my wife) insists that I mention the fact that my name is on the Alumni Assn. ballot, a candidate for the Graduate Athletic Board.

See you all Alumni Day.

The prevalent note, if there is one, this issue seems to be somewhat sociological. Gene Donovan is an executive with the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, on the Borsch Circuit in the Catskills. The Donovans have three children; Richard and Jane are still in school and Nan, their eldest, carries on the tradition of service at the Boston Guild for the Hard of Hearing. John Clifford is Supervisor at the Watertown, Mass., Board of Public Welfare. His daughter, Elizabeth, will graduate from Brookline High School in June. John is also a member of the Watertown Community Action Council, the citizen's group set up to carry on the War Against Poverty at the local level. Another activity in the same program is the Neighborhood Youth Corps which, in Chelsea, is directed by Ed. V. Brown. Ed, a Woburn resident, is Guidance Counselor at Chelsea High School and a former president of St. Rose, Chelsea, Holy Name Society.

One more educator from Thirty-Nine is in there battling for the material and spiritual welfare of his charges. Dr. Lawrence Fitzpatrick, Superintendent of Schools in Salem, Mass., is actively resisting changes which would curtail benefits of the Federal School Milk and School Lunch Programs. Larry, who is a colonel in the United States Air Force Reserve, also participated in "Operation Show Your Colors", during which Salem Post 23 of the American Legion distributed 10,000 lapel flags to school children.

World wide experience in the Army Quartermaster Corps comes in handy for Charles P. O'Riordan who now teaches Geography and Science in the Boston school system. Retired as a lieutenant colonel, he lives in Somerville and claims to be losing weight keeping up with his three boys, ages 10, 9 and 8.

Two of our classmates delivered strong opinions about draft card burners. "They should have their bottoms spanked!" retorted Hal Langlois when questioned about such recalcitrant youths, at the recent symposium on Crime and Punishment — '66 sponsored by the Boston University Student Council. In a television interview Hal, who is president of the American Correctional Association, went on to say this disrespect for law and order reflects some parents' lax attitudes and refusal to accept responsibility. In another television session earlier, Dr. Phil Quinn discussed an article he had written for fellow psychologists on the same subject in the JOURNAL OF CLINICAL COUNSELORS. Draft card burning is not intelligent dissent but an attempt to corrupt freedom into license, in Dr. Quinn's opinion. When it goes unpunished, draftees already in the service become prime targets for Communists, as in Korea.

John Molloy continues as successful administrator of the Topeka, Kansas, Community Chest. Also the toast of Topeka are George Norberg's tulips according to a feature article on, of all places, the Women's Page of the Boston Globe. George is a wholesale flower grower and a director of Boston's famous Flower Mart. Another star will fall on Thirty-Nine, as signals from the West attest. Headquarters, Strategic Air Command, Omaha, Nebraska has announced that Colonel Timothy J. Dacey Jr., was nominated for brigadier general by President Johnson.

Sellers outnumber buyers four to one this issue. Ed T. Mahoney is Senior Salesman for Lannan Chevrolet-Olds, Inc., in Woburn. Chuck has four youngsters and is active in Lions Club activities. Tad Walsh of Dorchester is supervisor of Residential Sales for Boston Gas Company. His daughter entered the order of Notre Dame de Namur a few years ago and his son will graduate from St. Mary's High School, Cambridge in June. Joe Kelleher is South Shore Sales Representative for Charles Gilman & Sons, Inc., wholesale liquors. Joe's son Dennis, a B.C. graduate of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1963, is a first lieutenant at Fort Knox. Another boy attends Xavierian High. Frank Hyland patrols Connecticut and Rhode Island for Metromatic Manufacturing Inc., of Medford, selling oil burning furnaces to retail dealers.

On the other side of the desk is Jim Ricciuti, recently appointed Purchasing Agent for the City of Quincy, Mass.

Not the least among our notes—Jerome P. Troy was married earlier this year in Park Ridge, Illinois, to Mary Lynn Hayes. Jerry is presiding justice of Dorchester District Court.

Paul Ryan has been promoted to be an associate professor of French at Assumption College in Worcester. He is also an associate professor of Spanish at that school as well as being Dean of both the Evening and the Summer Schools.

And a final exhortation. Thirty-Niners who don't make the Alumni Day festivities in June are urged to drop a note to the Secretary and reveal, divulge, disclose, relate, advise or otherwise tell, what they have been up to.

40 JAMES M. KEAN
15 Sanderson Place, Brighton

He stood tall in many ways among his classmates and friends. For those of us whose paths he crossed, our lives are so much richer today. For the out-of-towners who may have missed the news release, we are sorry to announce that Frank O'Callaghan died on February 2. A requiem Mass was sung for the repose of his soul at St. Mary of the Hills, Milton. Interment was at Milton cemetery. At the time of his death, Frank was engaged in the real estate and insurance business in his home town of Milton which he had also served as a town meeting member. The class extends its deepest sympathy to Frank's family. He was truly one of the fringe benefits of our days at the Heights. May he rest in peace.

Lactate Sunday Mass and Communion Breakfast on the campus brought out many of the local regulars. Among those who helped fill '40's table were: Jim Supple, John McLaughlin, Joe Foley, Ed Barrett, Jack Morrissey, Tom Duffey, Dave Lucey, Henry Desmond, your correspondent, Jim Thompson, Harry White, and Art Cullen among others. Had the occasion been a hockey game, we could say we got the best seats in the house. We were right on the Blue Line in front of the Snake Pit. If you don't follow us, you have been missing a top attraction hereabouts, the skating Eagles, their band, and cheering section. Ask Tom Duncan or Dick Wright. As for the breakfast, it was thoroughly enjoyed, thanks to Dave Lucey, and his straight man for the day, Ed Barrett.

Mention the name Barrett, brings to mind that Ed, as chairman of The Holy Name Speakers' Bureau, has Johnny Goodman on his team of touring orators. Does a bang up job too. This is just a service for you harried local committee men.

Speaking of committees and men, latest reports on the two up-coming events on the schedule for the class are most encouraging. In order, the Wianno week-end is gathering momentum and promises to almost double last year's affair. If you were part of last year's party, you need no briefing. If you are a bit hesitant for any one reason, forget it! Tom Cudmore has lined up a weekend that will leave you talking until the next celebration. Besides, what other fun agency will offer you a week-end with the free services of a doctor, lawyer, business consultant, financial advisor, real estate broker, clergyman, and even an embalmer, depending on your needs. These are only a few of the committed reservations that will be available any time after the lid-raiser Friday evening. Remember the dates, Friday, May 27 through Monday, May 30, or Sunday, May 29 if you prefer.

The second scheduled event, the Family Communion Breakfast, is listed for Sunday, June 12. Handling arrangements are Father John Dacey, Jack Dalton, and Henry McMahon. You will be contacted shortly about particulars. This occasion was one of the highlights of the anniversary year, and we look for a repeat this year. For you out-of-towners, the weather report is sunny, warm, and beautiful. For the out-of-touchers, here's a wonderful chance to rekindle those friendships that have waned over the years. Mention the out-of-touchers brings up the matter of the promised anniversary brochure. The response to our initial request was most encouraging, so we decided to wait for the laggards to check in. Wait we did, but arrive they didn't. Meanwhile, the information on the returns we had has become as out of date as last year's missal. Now we are in the process of updating. You'll be hearing from us shortly.

Proof that good things come in pairs. John Mulligan was recently promoted to full professor of modern languages at Villanova. Just previous to that the Marine Corps upped his rank to full colonel in the Reserves. At the last meeting of the Modern Language Association in Chicago, John served as chairman of the committee on Comparative Literature. Incidentally, that German language grammar that your offspring is tussling with could bear the Mulligan imprint on the title page. He has authored several German texts on the collegiate level. Congratulations, John. The way these fellows are moving about these days, they are liable to be reading this over my shoulder when it comes out in print, but at this time Gerry Russell was heading up a Marine regiment at Camp Lejeune and Bob Picardi was Washington bound for a staff assignment with the Corps.

Lost in the recent newspaper blackout in Boston was the story of the symposium conducted by the Eire Society of Boston on the background, progress, and effects of the Easter Rising. We mention it because the moderator for the panel was Monsignor Frank Lally.

Still on the subject of Easter, but in a different vein, Monsignor Bill Granville, Rector of the Cardinal O'Connell Seminary, was a concelebrant of the solemn Mass at the Cathedral on Easter Sunday, joining with His Eminence Cardinal Cushing.

Track buffs, coaches, competitors, and just the ordinary fan were high in their praise for the manner in which the first Boston College Relay Carnival was conducted on Saturday April 16 here at the athletic facility. Masterminding the three ring circus, it was even better than that, was Bill Gilligan who did a tremendous job pleasing everyone.

Latest convert to the skiing fraternity is Medford Jack Morrissey. It's a family affair with the Morrissey clan, with Sunapee, N.H. the favorite spot. Jack had to join up or else use shanks mare for transportation during the winter week-ends because all the youngsters headed north faithfully.

Then just to balance the globe, the Desmonds, Henry and Muriel, escaped south, to Jamaica in particular. Seems like Paul Duffey sold Henry a bill of goods on the island when he was up for the reunions. If you are interested, Henry has some wonderful pictures he'll show you.

If you're ever in the Harvard Square area with a few minutes to spare, you'll find Father Charlie Sheehy at St. Paul's, just off the square. And it's St. Brendan's Church, Dorchester, for Father Jack Coffey.

Bill Lawler has been named retail manager of Shell Oil Company's head office marketing organization. Bill and his wife have five children and reside in Woodcliff Lake, N.J.

Present at the Communion Breakfast, with Msgr. Joe Maguire as toastmaster, were our dynamic silver anniversary chairman Ike Jones; Paul True, who was instrumental in rounding up the gang; Len McDermott, Bill Fouhy, Ed Burke, John Colahan, Nick Sottile, Warren Heffernan, Herb Arnold, Tom Galligan, Bill Houlihan, Dr. Jim Wall, Dr. Harry Fulchino, Ray Flynn, Tom McDonald, John Daly, Jim Mulhern, Vin Milbury, Bob Long, Frank Loughran, Paul Carlin, John Connor, Dick Devereux, Larry Connors, Frank McSweeney, John Blakeney, Fran Blouin, Will Saulnier, Dick Daley, Len Frisoli, Jack Callahan, Jack Kehoe, Jim Hickey, Dr. George McManama, and your correspondent.

I was delighted to receive a long letter from Tom Sheeran who is now domiciled in Louisville, Kentucky, and who, after a distinguished World War II record as a tank commander, began teaching there in 1952. Tom married a Louisville girl, and they are presently the parents of ten children (currently a class record). At the present time, Tom is head of the Middle School, grades 5 to eight, at Aquinas School, a private prep school, also teaching History and doubling in brass as athletic director. Tom's oldest, Tim, is a sophomore at Catholic U., studying architecture.

Jack Mulroy, a longtime West Coast resident, is a senior investment executive at Shearson, Hammill & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and lives at Newport Beach, California. Jack is the father of five. Tom, the oldest, is in the second year at Pomona College, and Juliana is a National Merit Scholarship winner as a Marywood High senior. As a testimonial to Jack's ability, he and his wife Elizabeth were awarded a trip to Hawaii for a mutual fund seminar.

We are indebted to Nick Sottile for sending along news about Lt. Col. Joseph Murphy, a 16-year Army career man and a decorated veteran (Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and Purple Heart), who at the time you read this will be in Vietnam.

Apologies to Art Parker. I had previously had him listed as a dentist, but Art writes to inform us he is a physician specializing in internal medicine and metabolic diseases, working as Chief of the Diabetic Clinic of Kings County Hospital. Sorry about that, Chief!

Serving as president of Community Federal Savings & Loan Association in Hialeah, Fla., Jack Beatty has distinguished himself as a member of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Home Builders and a director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission. In his leisure moments Jack serves as President of the Bal Harbour Club.

John Connor has been appointed principal of the new three million dollar Doherty Memorial High School in Worcester, which is to open in September.

Bill Rooney, who retired from the Army in August of '65, is a professor at the School of Social Welfare, State University of New York, Albany, N.Y. Bill has a son graduating from the Heights in '66.

Bill Fouhy, whom we were glad to see at the Laetare Communion Breakfast, is with the Sun Oil Co.

Also at the same gathering we were glad to see Paul Carlin. Paul, one of those still enjoying single blessedness, is teaching at North Quincy High.

Charlie O'Rourke was appointed an Insurance Examiner for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

With a complete and entertaining program scheduled for Alumni weekend, including a cocktail party and buffet supper on Friday, June 10, a Boston Pops concert and a champagne dinner dance the following day, plus the baccalaureate and brunch on Sunday, the Class of 1941 is looking forward to 100% attendance.

Hi! This my first outing as correspondent and a grand opportunity to invite you to drop me a few lines as to how things are going—or even just to say hello. It would be great hearing from you... Just think, next year is our twentieth Anniversary—... Father Jim Gorman, M.M., who has spent the last thirteen years as a missionary in Japan, has a new, rugged assignment in the Town of Nabari. He is the only Catholic priest in a population of 30,000 with 21 Catholics. He has already built a small chapel and last Christmas underwent a heart warming experience in his first Baptisms—a family of four, mother, father, and two school children. He picks up the local gossip at the public bath, has mastered the language and is steadily at work except for a six month furlough in the "big P.X." (U.S.A. natch) which comes every six years. And we think our job is tough... Dr. Don Kenefick, who has analyzed himself into one of the better known psychiatrists in the country, reports from New York that he is the attending psychiatrist at St. Vincent's Hospital in Greenwich Village, Research Director of The National Association For Mental Health, and a clinical professor at B.U. Medical School. Busy guy. Nice to hear from you Don... Mr. Versatile, of our student days, Power Fraser, seems to have funnelled his exceptional talents into the American Felt Company, Glenville, Conn. Vice Pres. in charge of marketing and sales and recently appointed to the Board of Directors. Congratulations Power... A barrister and a skipper, John Dennehy, keeps a legal eye on the maritime interest of the Boston Shipping Association, Inc. No jay walkers in your area, huh, John... Walter Grondalski is in an all important field these days as Science Department Head, Lowell High School... Henry Megley is hail and hardy after his heart attack last summer. Henry knows most of the stewardesses by their first name and has made many trips about the country in Sales for the National Inventory Service Inc. If Virginia Joins you on your next trip, Hank, don't be surprised... David Farrell has returned to his Managing Editors desk at the Boston Herald following the long strike. David has been a member of "STARRING THE EDITORS", television panel show where flashes of his scholastic philosophy show... Grateful that the Ecumenical Council did not give us an option on Friday Fish is Tom Maloney who is treasurer for the Boston Fish Market Corp... Don Desmond is helping people help themselves as a private social worker practitioner in Waltham... Dick Medley extends his esprit de corps further than a U.S. Marine Corps Reserve where he holds the rank of Capt., in offering his help in any activity of our class. Be seeing you Dick... If you would like to "come on down", the best chauffeur around is John Mulligan, Captain for Eastern Airlines at Logan Airport... The Lord's Vineyard is in good hands at the Lemuel Shattuck Hospital where Father Mark Carr is the chaplain and at the Holy Name Parish in West Roxbury, Father Bob Boyle... As a fellow South Bostonian, I remember how Al Petruskas enjoyed playing post office as a teenager—he's now getting paid for it at the South Postal Annex, Boston.

Dave O'Connor has been elected a member of the Administrative Management Society by the Board of Directors of the Boston Chapter.

Jack Sullivan of Woburn recently returned for a short vacation from his duties with the State Department. Since 1956, he has seen service in Japan and Laos and is returning to his post at the Consulate General in Singapore. Ralph Rosenzweig is now President of the Temple Beth Shalom in Melrose.

Paul Hurley has been appointed to provide technical advisory service on National Rubber in the New York-New Jersey area.

Some of you will remember 14 years ago when Al Freedman proposed an annual award of a gold watch to be given to the outstanding student basketball player of the year, in honor of our classmate, Ron Hickey who was killed during the Korean war. The stature of this award has grown with the stature of basketball at Boston College. The award this year was presented to John Austin at a dinner held in the Oval Room of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel. 250 basketball fans attended and saw Athletics Director, Bill Flynn, present a plaque to Al Freedman for having established the Hickey Award. We are all proud of Al, and of the fact that our class makes this small contribution to Boston College athletics on an annual basis. Seen at the dinner were: classmates Ed White, Joe O'Shea, Jack Casey and Tom Donahue.

Ernie Provencer is the Administrator of a nursing home in Lewiston, Maine. Ernie has eight children. John Roman is Comptroller of Shepard & Clark Lumber Company. John lives in Brockton with his wife and five children. Joseph Cusick, Jr. is living at 535 Forestdale Drive, Atlanta, N.E., Georgia. Joe reports that he would like to have his friends drop in on him if they are in the Atlanta area. Also, he will be in Boston in June. Those of you who know Joe can call his father's residence and make plans to see him. Dick Goggin has been very much in the news—radio and TV news, that is. Dick was one of the Federal Mediators taking part in the Boston newspaper strike.

Plans for our Fifteenth Reunion are well underway, under the capable direction of Jim Derba and Jack Richards. It looks as though we will have a well-populated, grand reunion on the week-end commencing Friday, June 10th and continuing through Saturday and Sunday of that week-end... but more about that later.

Since our Winter issue was published, I have received a very nice, lengthy letter from Phil Mackey, formerly of our Class, who is actively engaged in the very interesting Yacht Sales business with outlets in Puerto Rico, Miami and the Falmouth-Woods Hole area. Phil expects to return to this part of the country in the Springtime.

We have heard from a number of our other classmates via Personal Information Sheets, including Jack McGowan, now living in Norwell. Jack has four children and is Manager of Central Accounting for Eastern Gas & Fuel Association; John McCauley, living in Danvers with his wife and 8-year old daughter, Maureen; Jack has been with General Electric since 1951 and has served in Vermont and Massachusetts and is with the small Aircraft Engine Department as manager of Purchasing.

Approximately forty of our classmates attended the Hockey Night vs. Army and participated in a buffet supper at Alumni Hall prior to the game. Among those attending were Jim O'Donnell, now living at 29 Buttonwood Lane, Hanover and presently a Vice President with James H. MacManus Co.; Joe Dooley, formerly of Milton, now living in West Boston; Art Casavant, formerly of Natick now of Lexington; Bill Renahan now living in West Roxbury; Jim Crowley formerly of Hingham now living in Framingham; Jack Connolly formerly of Dorchester, now of Weymouth; Paul Hutton now living in Belmont; Dr. John McDonald practicing dentistry in Beverly; Dick Stevenson formerly of Arlington, now of Hingham; Frank Sikora; Joe O'Shea; Derba, Wesner, Richards, and then my pencil broke and everyone adjourned to the McHugh Forum to watch the Eagles dump the Cadets. Speaking of Hockey, the Annual Pike's Peak Dinner was a huge success, thanks to the able and undaunting efforts of Red Martin and Billy Daley and their effervescent committee—which included a number of our class mates. A fine testimonial to Coach "Snooks" Kelley.

Accolades to Leo Wesner for a job well done on the Hockey Night... and all the more so as Leo was a nervous wreck awaiting the arrival of his first-born who, incidentally, turned up a few days later and made Leo a proud papa of a baby daughter, Jacqueline.

I had a nice chat with Dick Smillie at our March 31st Alumni Week-End Committee Meeting and elicited from him that he now has five children and is living in Braintree at 169 Hollingsworth Avenue. Dick is a Contact Administrator at M.I.T. and after leaving B.C. spent two years in the Army (from which he emerged as a First Lieutenant in 1953)... then he attended Harvard Business School, graduating in 1955.

The Alumni Committee met at 5:30 P.M. April 26th at Alumni Hall for dinner, and between then and the time you read this column a good many of you will have, or should have been contacted by one or more of the following in regard to Alumni Week-End. The Committee to date, consists of: John Richards, Chairman; John Venti, Allen D. Freedman, Maurice Downey, Arthur Silk, Richard N. Smillie, Edward S. Quirk, Jr., Charles E. Doherty, Robert Kaler, James F. Hanlon, Thomas Durant, M.D., Alfred Sutherland, Joseph O'Shea, Ermond White, Leo Wesner, James M. O'Donnell, Joseph Dooley, Arthur Casavant, William J. Renahan, James R. Crowley, John J. Connolly, Paul D. Hutton, Dr. John McDonald, Richard C. Stevenson, James P. Waters, Joseph F. Canney, Mike Taricano and Paul Kelly.

This year's golf tournament will have been held (on May 12th) at Wollaston Golf Club by publication time. It has become so popular that all of the starting times were filled as of this writing (April 15th). The tournament this year was limited to 160 participants.

Hope to see you and your family for a truly tremendous Alumni Week-End! The best ever!

The class committee has been in contact recently with members of the class to secure a reaction to having a spring dinner dance. Because of the almost unanimous reaction of the class we are sponsoring a champagne dinner dance at the Hotel Bradford on May 21st. The subcommittee under the chairmanship of Tom McHale is hard at work finalizing the details, but at this writing it appears that the affair will be similar to last spring's affair and at a comparable price. The only purpose of these affairs is to reflect the wishes of the class as a whole for social contact and we would earnestly ask your cooperation with the committee.

We have two corrections of notes in the last issue of the Alumni News. Gerry Carey is not a teacher in the Boston or any other school system as was incorrectly reported. He is, in fact, the Assistant Sales Manager for Equipment Products within Raytheon's International Staff.

We also inadvertently promoted Bob Jasse to the presidency of Deering Milliken, Inc. when he is, in fact, the President, General Manager and a Director of Chomerics, Inc., a subsidiary. Bob is living in Winchester, Massachusetts, with his wife and four children.

Bill Beaton has a new arrival, a daughter, Sarah Therese. Bill is now living in Woodside, New York.

The class was well represented at the annual Laetare Sunday-Communion Breakfast. Tom McHale, Bill Kelly, Lou Totino, were present. Jack Leonard attended and the occasion was graced by the presence of his attractive alumna sister, Jim Coughlin who is an appraiser for one of our leading fire insurance companies was in attendance. Jack Collins who has recently joined the law firm of Sherburne Powers & Needham was also present as was Jack McCarthy whose law firm recently merged with Warner Stickle Stetson & Bradley.

Several members of the class attended the basketball awards dinner. Dan Brosnahan, the incumbent President of the Varsity Club, was at the head table. Charlie Stamos, Joe McDonnell and Rocco Charlton also attended.

I received a note from Berkeley indicating that John Wieners was a featured participant in a poetry workshop at the University of California and was reading selections from his published poems.

Dr. Bill Sullivan will have become Chief Resident at the Veterans Administration Hospital in West Roxbury by the time you read this and will take his first boards in orthopedics in May. John J. Caddigan was awarded the Coast Guard Medal. This medal is one step below the Congressional Medal of Honor. Jack was also promoted to Lieut. Commander. His wife Mary is also a graduate from the School of Nursing.

The annual Laetare Sunday Communion Breakfast brought forth a host of 1955ers including Art McCarthy, Dick Drew, Greg Plunkett and Jerry Donahue.

Letters from classmates scattered throughout the country have brought news of other classmates who have been classified among the missing in the past few years. Helene Marsh has located our three nuns almost through coincidence. Starting in April, Helene will be Instructor in Pediatrics and Coordinator of the Maternal and Child Health Program at St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland. Sister Mary Ann is the Director of Nurses there. She sends word that Sister Margaret James is the Director of Nurses at Providence Hospital in Washington, D.C., and Sister Mary Justin is an Administrator in a hospital in New York. Anyone who would like to write to them, please contact me for the address as they would love to hear from one and all. Jean Mullen O'Farrell is the busy mother of three out in California. She must like the West Coast as does Pat Schaefer Romelfanger who also has three. Sue White Sullivan is living in Canton and has a brood of two. Stephanie Coffey Krupinsky writes that she and Ed added their third daughter and fourth child to the list of future alumni. Our congratulations and best wishes for success to her husband, Ed on being appointed Asst. Special Agent in Charge of the St. Louis office of the F.B.I. . . . MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS FOR THE BIG ALUMNI WEEKEND

We strongly urge you to give your full support to Alumni Weekend this year—our Tenth Anniversary year. We are planning various functions as a class in conjunction with this June 10-12 weekend. On Friday night June 10th we are having a "Class of '56" social at McElroy (on campus) from 8 to midnight as sort of a "kickoff". No charge—everyone welcome.

A committee of forty of your classmates are in the process of trying to reach you by phone to encourage your participation in one or more of the eight events. The POPS and DINNER DANCE look like sellouts—get your request for tickets in fast and we can arrange to locate '56 as a group. Please don't wait—we cannot reach everyone. Contact one of your correspondents (above), Alumni Hall or myself. Jim Barry

Tom Lawton, a staff member at the M.I.T. Instrumentation Lab., presented a paper at a jointly-sponsored U.S.-Soviet Conference on "Automatic Control in the Peaceful Uses of Space". The conference was held in Norway in June of 1965. Tom and his wife, the former Nancy Breen of Dorchester, are fashioning their own population explosion, being the proud parents of two sons and two daughters.

The Class extends its sympathy, somewhat belatedly to Tom, on the loss of his Mother. Bob Bent is an Assistant Professor in Math at Bridgewater State Teachers College. Bob, a former stalwart on the mound for the Eagles of a few years back, has been more recently a fairly consistent performer in the Boston Park League. Another former baseball standout, Joe Russell, our shortstop back in '55 and '56 is also on the faculty at Bridgewater in the math department. Look's like a B.C. takeover there. Yet another former baseballer, the captain of the Eagles in 1956, Paul Carey, is also following the professional bent and recently joined the faculty at Mass. Bay Community College, following a high school teaching stint at Stoneham High, where he enjoyed no small success as a hockey mentor. Don Brack, a most loyal Eagle fan, has taken up residence in Newton with his wife and daughter and has been for some time a senior technical writer with Itel Corporation. Following graduation, Jim King, a distinguished military graduate, completed a tour of duty with the Army. More recently he attained the rank of Captain in the Reserve Arm of the Special Forces. Following military service, Jim went to B.C. Law, where he fashioned an enviable scholastic record and served on the Law Review. Jim now resides in Ft. Worth, Texas, with his wife and three sons and is employed as a trial attorney for the National Labor Relations Board.

Jack Brady, and his wife, the former Ann Steinman of Lexington, recently announced the arrival of their first child, a grand baby daughter. The Bradys reside in Chelmsford. Jack is a teacher in the Wayland Schools. His wife, Ann, was formerly on the faculty at Bridgewater State College. John Harney's wife, Mary, recently presented him with a baby girl, Jeanne Marie. John is a sales representative for Harper & Row, a major educational publishing firm, in their college division. He is also serving as an instructor in philosophy at Northeastern University. The Harney's recently took up residence in their new home in Medfield. Incidentally, John's wife, Mary, who holds an M. A. in Math from B. C., recently joined the faculty at Wheaton College, Norton, Mass. Bob Jennings's wife recently presented him with a new baby, making for a present grand total of five children. Bob serves as a history and geography teacher on the Milton High School Faculty. John McDonnell — elected to the Board of Directors of ABT. Associates, a Cambridge firm where he is employed in Computer Systems and Applications. John Cronin — Jack is married to Betty Ford, Ed., '57, and is living in Framingham. He is employed by Block Engineering Inc., Cambridge. Ralph Good, Jr., is practicing law with the Boston firm of SULLIVAN & DONAHUE. He obtained his law degree at B.C. Law, where he served on the Law Review. Ralph is married to the former Judy Norton of West Roxbury, and they have two boys, plus a girl. Jack Kennedy — he and Lucille have four children, Ellen, Jane, John Jr., and Neil. Jack has just completed his seventh year as co-owner of Sullivan's Curtain Shop in Lynn. William M. Plansky — married and now living in Belmont. Bill is working at AVCO in Wilmington. W. Arthur Reilly, Jr., married, and have new arrival, a son William Arthur, III. "Art" is a Development Specialist for the Boston Redevelopment Authority. Merton E. Thompson, III — married to Pat Sullivan, Ed., '56, the parents of three children. Mert is a Corporate Trust Officer for the First National Bank of Boston, commuting from Natick, Mass. John F. Lee, associated with JOHN F. LEE, REALTORS of 905 Main St., Waltham, Mass. He and Marie have three children. Edward Lynch, Jr. — Ed is living in West Newton, and is employed at Ames Safety Envelope & Ames Color Film, Inc. of Somerville, Mass. He is the father of Lisa, Amy and Sara.

In a general review of our Class we came up with some interesting observations. For instance, how many of the '56ers married classmates? Well, here are some that we know of: Walter and Terry Brown Scatatore, Mert and Patricia Sullivan Thompson, Dave and Anne Maguire Finnegan who announce the birth of a bouncing baby, Dick and Louise Burke Toland, Frank and Dotty Macauley Flood, Charlie and Jean Riley Roche, and Bill and Helen King Kennedy. Have we missed anyone?

When it comes to romance, rivalry apparently goes out the window, because among our classmates there is quite a matrimonial alliance between B.C. and Holy Cross. To name a few there are, Dick and Maryellen Martell Barry, living in Quincy with two youngsters; Jim and Anne Sweeney Donovan, plus two, of Norwood; Ed and Beverly Ross Fox and family of Sharon; Pat and Anne Hosie Golden of Cleveland Heights, Ohio. The Golden's have five children, and at last reports Pat had extended his studies into Neurosurgery.

Anyone looking for a good lawyer has probably run across Bill Kennedy and Dave Finnegan.

Pedagogy still remains a leader in the choice of professions, including in its ranks: Jim Bryant, principal at Stoughton; Peter Paglari, director of languages in Walpole, and head of his own Travel Bureau (Timbuktu, anyone?); Connie Regolino at Newton; Mary Anne Tierney Powers in Revere; and Paul Gibbons. Part-time teachers include Betty Bulman Craven, who is residing in Jamaica Plain with Bob and two little ones, and Kay Donovan Goudie of Norwell.

The religious life called a few of us, and we are proud to number among that group Sister Mary Alexandre Stewart, teaching in New Guinea from where Sister M. Leona Ouellette recently returned; Ruth McGoldrick, Antoinette Caldrene, Rosemary Walsh, Anne Turbini, and Pat Moore are teaching at Notre Dame, Hingham.

Alice Shea is a physio-therapist at one of our local children's hospital, and Margie Murphy of Milton brightens up the computers at IBM with her mathematical know-how.

Among those enjoying the pre-Christmas dance at Alumni Hall were class president Jim Barry and his wife, and Jim and Mary Lou Sheehan Brown of Nahant. Barry and Maryalice Roberts O'Neil of Scituate had a great deal of holiday spirit, being one of the lucky couples to win the champagne prizes. Also enjoying the reunion atmosphere were Bill and Helen King Kennedy, Dick and Carol Hines Gleason, and Bob and Kay Donovan Goudie. These couples, plus Ed and Macy Finn Doherty are star members of the "Parents of Six Club!" Can anyone top that record? Running very close in the "Five So Far" group are Paul and Angela Hennessey of West Roxbury, Don and Mary

T. O'Reagan Looney, and Joe and Pat McHugh Hadley of Hingham.

George and Joan Carroll Donovan of Sharon recently added to their family of two girls with the arrival of son Christopher. Dick and Louise Burke Toland presented Dick Jr. with a new brother, and Walter and Janet Ohrenberger McCarthy of North Scituate now have three children with the birth of Erin. Dan and Carolyn Kenney Foley of West Roxbury now have four, and living close by in Roslindale are Carol Rock Dobbyn and Phil with one youngster.

Finally it is unfortunate that in this reunion year we must mourn the recent deaths of two classmates: William Kirk Sheehan, U.S. Navy, lost in a plane mishap over Hawaii. Bill exemplified the friendly, extroverted spirit of B.C., so hard-working and interested in those activities which made pleasant memories for all of us who enjoyed them. Our most sincere condolences to his family. Also, to those of us who were privileged to know Mary Ann Desmond of Everett, it was with great shock and profound sadness that we learned of her untimely death on Dec. 22, 1965. A gentle soul, a loyal friend, and an unselfish heart, Mary will be ever in our prayers, as will her bereaved family. These classmates rest in peace. Tony Massimino — MASSIMINO'S OF HANOVER — exclusive dress shop, and men's clothing. John Duffy — Manufacturer's Representative — living in Duxbury with his wife Nancy, and sons. Among the Lawyers in the class we have: Brian Concannon and Hank Quarles and in the medical field we have Paul Collins and George Bernier as Physicians. Bob Halloran is a member of the Million Dollar Round Table, for excellence in Insurance.

He also, would enjoy hearing from former classmate. Lt. Robert Camacho, SOC USA OCS, Box 589, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland.

Robert Degrinney is teaching second grade in Billerica. Also, teaching in Billerica is Mary Caldicott.

Judy Prince and Mary McNamara are teaching in Arlington.

Eleanor Thornton is teaching junior high history in Somerville. Also, teaching in Somerville are Mary Finn and Rita Macneil.

From the land of Jamaicans come the news that Ginny Breslin and Betsy O'Neill continue to enjoy their life. Betsy's parents were down for a visit after Christmas. Also, heard that Bette Michalski hoped to visit them some time in the spring.

In a letter from George Gingerelli, he states that he's seen Marty Choquette and Jim Ecklof, both just so happy. Mart's sporting a new diamond.

Jim and Ann (Coleman) Stadler are living in Virginia these days.

Someone mentioned seeing Bunny Cullen and John Regan, around the Christmas Holidays. That Junior Week engagement finally became official.

Attu Curley and Claire Polek continue to enjoy their San Francisco address, telephone no. 861-0707. Claire was down to visit Carole Tremlett and Stella Kosowicz a few weeks ago. A fun weekend filled with some additional B.C. alumni. Jerry Gillis A&S, '63, was around to spread that special kind of cheer found only at the TAM. Claire and Attu will be heading home this summer. Trem and Stella will be heading home in May. Stella continues to enjoy So. Calif. especially since she's learned to fly right. As for Trem there's no better skiing than that of the Squaw and Heavenly Valley area.

Donna (Doyle) and Dave Gavin are also living in San Francisco.

Liz Shea and Betty Wareing have at last left the ski slopes and should be heading for our glorious new state, Hawaii. Talk about a vacation.

N.B., Ann Pietrazek is working in the O.R. U.S.N.H., San Diego. Sailing has become her sideline. Other on the West Coast: Don Kelly is off to Hawaii. He's an ensign and will have duty at that paradise. Wally Johnson is off to the So. China Seas or, it is better known in some circles, West Pac.

Sr. Helen is working among the natives in So. America and just loves her work. Heard from Sr. William, who is working at Bethany. She, as usual, loves her work.

Marianne Gutch with long hair is beaming with happiness. Her wedding to Jim McGowan A&S, USMC, is planned for June 18.

Joan Knight and Judie Theibault are holding down (or should I say up) the Newport Naval Hospital. Joan, who was quite sick for awhile, is now back on her feet. Living at a York Ave. address, NYC, Joan McGregor and Kathy Keegan contribute to the hustle and bustle of that large thoroughfare. Kathy is still with VNA. Joanie is still at NYU. Joan hopes to return to another rewarding summer in Michigan with her children.

OPPORTUNITY...

Now may be the time for you to think about a career-change. This could be your opportunity as it was for Bob (left) and Bill Cleary (right), two of our bright young college-graduate associates.

Leader-type men with real motivation to establish and operate their own businesses, they responded like natural to the marketing training tutelage of our "pros."

We are seeking a sales-oriented man to join our well-established 44 year-old firm (New England Life itself is nearly 3 times as old). Our selection process is uniquely painstaking because we want only the right man. It could be you. Inquire about it from Bob or Bill at significant progress has been achieved by the Graduate Business Alumni Association. Three successful dinner meetings have been held in February, March and April. In March, Father W. Seavey Joyce gave an extremely interesting talk on the "Role of the Businessman in the Community," which was followed by an excellent presentation on long-range planning by James Collier, the Director of Corporate Planning at Raytheon Company. In May, J. David Hopkins, Vice President of Commercial Activities, of Itel will address the group at the Pillar House.

In June, the Alumni organization in conjunction with the Graduate Business School will co-sponsor a reception for the 1966 graduates. In April a questionnaire requesting information was sent to you. If you haven't yet submitted it, please do so at your earliest convenience. An alumni directory will be published as soon as all the information is received. Also, if you haven't sent in your dues, please do so, "we need the money." We would like to thank our current president, Arnold Coda, for his help and assistance in establishing this Association. Arnold has accepted a new position in Olean, New York, and we wish him success in his new job.

Today— Just as for Generations...

First National Stores has come a long way over the years, from the corner store which was once so much a part of almost every New England community to the magnificent, modern supermarkets which range from Northern Maine to New York and New Jersey in our own day. But basic "storekeeping" principles have not changed at First National—and they won't.

Today, just as for generations, First National knows that there is no economy without quality. Insistence upon rigid standards of excellence prevail now, as they always have. Quality is guaranteed.

First National is also dedicated to thrift . . . to lowest possible prices for its customers every shopping day of the year.

Today First National is quite as concerned as ever with matters of friendliness and courteous service and dependability . . . with providing the very best in foods and food shopping, in the famous First National tradition.
